The Roosevelt Book For Which The Public Has Waited

My Brother Theodore Roosevelt

By Corinne Roosevelt Robinson

ALMOST confidential are these personal recollections of his childhood, boyhood, youth and manhood; none but a sister could have written them.

"In the spirit of confidence that my frankness will not be misunderstood," says Mrs. Robinson, "I place a sister's interpretation of a world-wide personality in the hands of my fellow Americans."

Illustrated. $3.00

From one of the picture letters in which the youthful Roosevelt tells of bringing in a dead bat.

JOHN GALSWORTHY'S Latest Novel

TO LET

A story of the rising generation, in which an old marriage without love thrusts its grim hand into a young and eager romance.

is destined to be one of his most successful. Already it is widening the large circle of Galsworthy admirers. In it they are finding the supreme expression of his intense passion for beauty, his flawless artistry and unerring scrutiny of life—delicacy and power blended.

LARAMIE Holds the Range

and holds the interest in this tale of action.

A galloping "westerner"—the best in years. LARAMIE rides, shoots and speaks the truth in the bitter war between the rustlers and cattlemen.

You remember his Whispering Smith and his Nan of Music Mountain:—he has outdone even these in this new story of love and adventure.

NEW SCRIBNER FICTION

THE OTHER SUSAN

By JENNETTE LEE

A full-length novel which deals with a striking situation. A tranquil, wholesome New England woman, a farmer's daughter of the best sort, married and with growing children, comes to the age of nearly forty before she awakes to the fact that for many years she has loved not her husband but another man—a neighbor, with whom the ordinary neighborly relations of life have been close.

CHANCE ENCOUNTERS

By MAXWELL STRUTHERS BURT

This is a collection of stories by one of the most popular writers of short stories, whose talent has been emphasized this year by the award of the O. Henry prize. The story acclaimed the best of the year 1920 by the O. Henry Memorial Committee, "Each in His Generation," is included in this volume along with other stories hardly less notable.

GODS

By SHAW DESMOND
Author of "Democracy" and "Passion"

This colorful love-story forms a kaleidoscope of modern life, which reveals the conflicts of the gods Power, Beauty and Love. Through its hero's eager eyes the reader examines twentieth-century life and thought as the former sees them in London and Ireland in his contacts with typical figures of the day—the revivalist, the newspaper owner, the captain of industry, and others.

TIDE RIPS

By JAMES B. CONNOLLY

This new collection by America's leading writer of sea stories shows more variety than any of the earlier ones. It includes, for instance, "The Rakish Brigantine," with the two familiar figures of Bill Green and Hiker Joy; "What Price for Cod?", a tale of the Gloucester fishermen; "Not Down in the Log," a steamboat story; "Beejum's Progress," the story of the son of a great magnate who makes good in the destroyer service.

THE NEW WORLD OF ISLAM

By LOTHROP STODDARD

Another book of arresting quality by the author of "The Rising Tide of Color." Mr. Stoddard discloses the modern world of Islam in a ferment of religious fervor and economic and political unrest which holds a sharp portent for the Christian peoples. He begins with a dramatic presentation of the spectacular rise of Mohammedanism, its swift inundation of vast surrounding regions, and its subsequent history, leading up to a discussion of the era of restlessness and activity now evident among the 250,000,000 followers of the Prophet.

"The New World of Islam" will be read with the same intense interest evoked by "The Rising Tide of Color."

"His book makes me feel at fifty like fifteen, makes me wish to begin all over again—and come from Holland! It beats the Dutch—by its Americanism, I suppose, this book of Bok's."—D. L. S. in the Atlantic Monthly.

This autobiography of a Dutch boy fifty years after, termed by Lord Northcliffe the best autobiography of our time, is now in its tenth edition. Since its publication in August at the three dollar price it has already run through three more editions. Illustrated.

IS AMERICA SAFE FOR DEMOCRACY?

By WILLIAM McDOUGALL, Professor of Psychology in Harvard College

"As I watch the American nation dancing gaily, with invincible optimism, down the road to destruction. . . ."

Here is a sharp warning to America, by one of the leaders of the world in philosophical and psychological thought, in a study of racial conditions, particularly in the United States. Professor McDougall believes that extinction threatens the race which conceived the United States and brought the republic to its high position.

ETHEL M. DELL'S NEW NOVEL The Obstacle Race

You who have read "The Top of the World," "The Tidal Wave," "The Lamp in the Desert," "Great-heart," "The Hundredth Chance," "The Safety Curtain," "Bars of Iron," or any other of Ethel Dell's long line of wonderfully successful novels, certainly will not miss reading "The Obstacle Race," by long odds her best book.

The story of a woman who, in an effort to conquer herself, escapes from the mad whirl of a parasitic society circle, only to find that the real race of life is just beginning for her. Hidden away from her own world—flying from a subtle danger that might well mean soul-disaster—she fearlessly faces new obstacles in the path that leads to a saner existence.

A novel that grips the emotions and the imagination with its swift action, tense situations and many thrilling moments. The Obstacle Race is not published in serial form.

A Literary Thunderbolt!

By BEN HECHT

A first novel by a new writer which has already created a sensation for its relentless realism, its sheer audacity and frankly brutal treatment of the present day problems of sex, sociology and psychology. John V. A. Weaver in the Brooklyn Eagle says: "If you want to hear the most powerful voice of the present generation—a voice which uses words with exactness, with pitiless straightness and assaulting vehemence, read this book, this first novel of a writer who is destined to make a tremendous place for himself." $2.00

PRIVILEGE

By Michael Sadlier

A brilliant novel that traces the inevitable decadence and the ultimate downfall of an old English family through arrogance and inability to sense the fact that the old order is changing.

HALL CAINE'S NEW NOVEL

THE MASTER OF MAN

STRIKES FIRE ON THE CRITICS' ANVILS

Some say that it is an apology for sin—read Hall Caine's reply—send for a copy. Others compare it to TOLSTOY'S "Resurrection" and HAWTHORNE'S "The Scarlet Letter." The Philadelphia Ledger says:

"In this opus magnum Mr. Caine has risen to great literary height. He has revitalized the old much-disputed question of equal standards for both sexes by forcefully placing before his readers the true meaning of the standard of morality embodied in the law. The author has put his entire genius into this terrible story, in which every human passion is treated with the powerful grasp of human understanding and the literary style of a consummate artist. It is a great book."

"Caine is the surviving member of a school, the founders of which were Dickens, Hugo, and Tolstoy. Charles Gabriel, Jr., in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

"None but Hall Caine could have written anything like his latest work, "The Master of Man" (Lippincott). It runs true to form. It has the old familiar grace and effectiveness of diction, and the diction enwraps the inimitable mixture of skilful story telling, vivid portrayal, warm sympathies, and delineated sentiment and passion and moral strife . . . In parts the book is beautifully harmonized, so as to produce the rich appeal to sentiment . . . THE NEW YORK SUN.

"Sir Hall Caine can be relied upon to provide a romantic setting, but at bottom he describes ordinary experiences, that is, experiences which are the more likely to appeal to everybody because everybody can conceive something similar in temptation happening to himself." THE PHILADELPHIA RECORD.

"More than one of his previous books has been termed his masterpiece, but here is one greater than any of its predecessors, and probably the one that will take lasting rank as his greatest." THE PITTSBURGH CHRONICLE TELEGRAPH.

"Hall Caine, in this strange, powerful story, has gathered into a somber and stately music a tragic sweep of the chords of love and life. His characters, environed by the hills and glens of the Isle of Man, are primitive, intense, appealing, and they stand out with strong stride and vivid speech, as they pass on to the fate they create for themselves. One leaves the book with a new and chastened sense of the tears in mortal things." EDWIN MARKHAM.

IT CAN BE SOLD TO EVERY FICTION READER. A big statement, but bear in mind that HALL CAINE has taken the place of the beloved DICKENS in the hearts of readers everywhere. Price $1.75

THE THING FROM THE LAKE

"A Tale from the Borderland of Dread"

By ELEANOR M. INGRAM

Frontispiece $1.90

This last novel from the pen of one of our most gifted writers of romance is significant in its departure from her usual style. For those who love the weird and mysterious it will bring a new thrill. Roger Locke, successful composer, buys a farm in Connecticut. On the first night of his residence he is startled by two nocturnal visitors, one "a thing of dread" and the other apparently bent on saving his life from it. Up to the very last the suspense is sustained without a break, until in a sudden flash the whole astounding truth is revealed. The reader may take his choice of either an occult or scientific explanation of the matter.

THE WHISTLER JOURNAL

By ELIZABETH R. and JOSEPH PENNELL. This companion work to the famous "Life" is full of the most intimate revelations of Whistler and his friends, including Rosetti, William Morris, and many other notable personages. The many excellent illustrations are a feature that will be prized by collectors. They show Whistler's friends and enemies, his celebrated houses, exteriors and interiors, interesting sketches, etc., all of the most uncommon nature.

SEEING THE SUNNY SOUTH

By JOHN T. FARIS
Author of "Seeing the Far West"

This volume continues the very popular series of travel books begun in 1919 with "Seeing Pennsylvania," followed in 1920 by "Seeing the Far West." It covers everything of interest in houses, roads, traditions, entertaining stories, and historical anecdotes from different places. As in his other books, Dr. Faris not only gives a vivid portrayal of everything worth seeing in the country through which he passes, but adds a human background which makes it an entertaining gift book for anyone.

LOTHROP, LEE & SHEPARD CO.'S NEW FALL BOOKS, 1921

THE BOOK OF COWBOYS

By DR. FRANCIS ROLT-WHEELER

With Thirty-Three Illustrations All-Around Picture

Jacket in Colors $2.00

The era of the Cowboy is a unique epoch in American history, but one which has been little studied and the history of which is little known.

Dr. Rolt-Wheeler, in a book which is full of the swing and vitality of those times, which is replete with fur-feuds, Mormon massacres, Indian fighting, Western gun-play, and the wild days of the open range, has given a vivid and accurate picture of the days through which the Western States leaped from savagery to Statehood. The book is unique in its matter of handling, and, while the reader will revel in its thrilling incidents and its sweep of the Great Outdoors, he will lay it down with a fuller understanding of the lives of men who contributed so much to America's greatness, and a clearer perception of the way in which the West has come to be a power and a pride in these United States. For older boys, but their elders will read it with equal interest.

BOY'S HOME BOOK OF SCIENCE AND CONSTRUCTION

By ALFRED P. MORGAN

Author of "The Boy Electrician"

With 9 Full-Page and 365 Text Illustrations and Diagrams Octavo $2.50

Appealing to the spirit of adventure, this remarkable book conducts its readers upon an absorbing excursion in the wonderland of Science, the fascinating mysteries of which may, under such skilful guidance, be explored without leaving home, and at very little expense. The start is made in the kitchen, that great and comprehensive laboratory, if understood, and with the aid of familiar articles the profoundest secrets of Nature and Science are unlocked and the close relation shown between great commercial processes and the most common activities.

With carefully drawn and illustrated plans and plain descriptions, boys are shown how to make at slight cost a great variety of mechanical appliances that actually do the work of great inventions and elaborate machines. Worth a whole library in its information, furnishing a liberal education in science, and so written as always to be entertaining and never dry. For boys from twelve to any age.

THE BOY WITH THE U.S. SECRET SERVICE

Thirteenth Volume of the "U. S. SERVICE SERIES"

By DR. FRANCIS ROLT-WHEELER

Profusely Illustrated from Official Photographs $1.75

The combination of accuracy and thrill is the key-note of the "U. S. Service Series," and in no book of the series has it been more necessary for the author to be wary. The Secret Service of the United States is truly a secret service, and few people are aware how wide is the scope of its activities. In this book, the real Secret Service story is told with vividness but without loose sensationalism, with accuracy, yet without dryness.

THE RAID OF THE OTTAWA

By D. LANGE

Illustrated Picture Jacket in Colors $1.50

The high-class "Indian Stories" of Mr. Lange are as cordially approved by parents and educators for the true American history in them, as they are well liked by the boys themselves for their exciting situations and their alluring accounts of wild life.

This story tells how two American boys followed the trail of an Ottawa and how they were captured and became, for a time, the adopted sons of a noble Indian. For boys of twelve to any age.

THE JOYOUS GUESTS

By MAUD LINDSAY and EMILIE POULSSON

Authors of "The Joyous Travelers"

With Thirteen Full-Page Illustrations in Colors by W. M. BERGER

Also Picture Jacket in Colors $2.00

"The Joyous Travelers" became a great favorite on account of the story-telling gift and poetic ability of its authors. This has the same qualities of excellence. A Squire opens his spacious halls to Christmas guests, old and young, and insists that all tell tales. So for each of the twelve nights of Christmas-tide they make merry with good cheer and good stories. A beautiful picture for each night and a frontispiece, from really remarkable paintings, complete the season's finest book for children. For boys and girls from eight to fifteen.

HEROINES OF HISTORY AND LEGEND

Selected by ELVA S. SMITH

Carnegie Library, Pittsburgh Illustrated from Prints of Famous

Paintings Large 12mo $2.00

Most of the selections are from standard writers; the scenes and incidents are varied, and different types of loyalty, patriotism, courage and self-sacrifice are presented. The editor, who has had long experience in evaluating books for children and young people and who knows the interests of girls, is exceptionally well qualified for selecting and arranging such a collection. For girls from twelve to fifteen, and upward.

THE BRYNE GIRLS

How They Worked and Won

By MARY K. MAULE

Author of "The Little Knight of the X Bar B"

Illustrated Jacket in Colors $1.75

A story of three New York sisters, the eldest still in her teens, meeting new conditions in the true spirit of the "new girl." Each sister, the eldest as a newspaper woman, the second as a home decorator and the youngest as an aspirant for the stage, has a very lively experience. Wit and humor abound, relieving the seriousness of many an occasion. The way each sister "comes through" makes good reading. For girls from fifteen upward.

WHEN GRETEL WAS FIFTEEN

By NINA RHOADES

Illustrated All-Around Picture Jacket in Colors $1.75

One of the few juveniles with a real plot, well worked out, and so far excelling the ordinary book for girls that any one can read it with interest. Pretty talented Gretel, one hundred per cent. American as she is, bears a name honored by her father, who had been a famous musician, but unmistakably German. Both friends and foes are misled by this, and Gretel, deploring the whole strife, and modestly sure that she is a coward, suddenly is compelled to face a situation requiring the highest degree of courage and fortitude as well as loyalty. For girls from twelve to sixteen.

ADELE DORING AT BOARDING-SCHOOL

By GRACE MAY NORTH

Illustrated Jacket in Colors $1.75

Fourteen-year-old Adele Doring is the leading spirit in the "Sunnyside Club," a group of close friends whose Club motto is "The only creed of which we have need is the art of being kind." In one way or another, instead of finishing the grammar-school course, all the members of the Club go to a boarding-school. They are good girls to know.

THE SILVER BEAR

By EDNA A. BROWN

Illustrated in Colors

All-Around Picture Jacket and End-Leaves in Colors $1.50

Lucy and Dora lived in the brown cottage opposite the drug-store, and this story tells of the interesting things which happened during one summer. A very real story, told with a charm and a simple directness which will appeal to even older children than the little girls of six or eight for whom it is written.

BETTY BARKER

A LITTLE GIRL WITH A BIG HEART

By JANET THOMAS VAN OSDEL

Illustrated in Colors All-Around Picture Jacket and End-Leaves in Colors $1.50

Betty asks many questions, makes mistakes, and has disappointments, and can be homesick, but is so bright, helpful, and loyal in her friendships that one gets more and more fond of her. For girls of six or eight.

DOROTHY DAINTY'S RED LETTER DAY

The New "Dorothy Dainty" Book

By AMY BROOKS

Illustrated $1.35

In the latest volume of the country's leading series for little girls, Dorothy learns how the term "red letter day" originated, and at once starts a book of days to be marked in that way. It is just like Dorothy that all the days marked are those when she had been so glad for some one else that she could not help mark them! For girls from eight to twelve.

WHEN I WAS A BOY IN NORWAY

By DR. JOHN O. HALL

Illustrated from Photographs $1.25

As preacher, teacher, journalist, and lecturer, Dr. Hall is known far and wide, and his account of Norwegian life as lived by an active boy is well told and appealing. For boys from ten to fourteen.

WHEN I WAS A GIRL IN SWITZERLAND

By S. LOUISE PATTESON

Author of "Pussy Meow," and "How to Have Bird Neighbors"

Illustrated from Photographs $1.25

Switzerland is a most popular country, and its charm is felt even by those who have never seen it. For girls from ten to fourteen.

An Expert's Opinion ofBRASS*By CHARLES GILMAN NORRIS

GERTRUDE ATHERTON, Author of many novels from
 "The Conqueror" to "Sisters-in-Law," writes:

San Francisco, September 3rd.

My dear Mr. Norris:

I read BRASS with the greatest possible interest in spite of the fact that I detested every character in it and every phase of life represented. To my mind such people don't matter, they are merely in the world to serve as a base for the higher civilization, which is all that matters—and this on sound anthropological grounds; I am not giving vent to any silly prejudice.

But all that does not interfere with my ability to recognize the artistic value of the book, which seems to me of a very high order. It is so well composed, so direct, so free from unnecessary writing, in spite of its length, and so indisputably true to life. An intelligent reader in Timbuctoo would never for a moment question its absolute fidelity and lack of exaggeration. It is a tragic arraignment of the marriage question, and far more effective than if the scene were laid in the higher walks of civilization, for although the upper classes find marriage quite as great a problem and as often go on the rocks, they have a thousand compensations.

Of course you do not expect any one to like Philip. Personally I did not care what became of him, if only because his manners were so atrocious. I had far more sympathy with Marjorie, and was delighted to see her rise to her proper level.—By the way, what would you have done with her if it hadn't been for the movies? But she would have won out in some way. She belongs to the order of butterflies with wire in their wings. But the evolution of all the characters was quite perfect.

I do not think there is a doubt of the enormous success of the book, not only on account of its merits, but coming as it does during this Zolaesque revival. You asked me to be frank, and I am equally honest in wishing you all the success in the world.

B R A S S
By CHARLES GILMAN NORRIS

Detroit, Michigan, 9-6-21

E. P. Dutton & Company,
681 Fifth Ave., New York City

Gentlemen:

I have just been reading "Brass" by Charles Gilman Norris, whose "Salt" I enjoyed when it was published. It almost seems as though Charles were carrying on the work of his lamented brother, Frank. The similarity in style and particularly in descriptive power is remarkable. "Brass" is one of the most gripping novels that I have seen in a long time. Despite the big headlines that are in the field this year, it ought to be destined to have a very large sale among the readers of the more serious fiction.

Very truly yours,

WARD MACAULEY,

(Macauley Brothers)

WM: HBE

Another dealer writes from Portsmouth, N. H.

"The story is not only an exceedingly interesting one but it shows that in too many cases the love which has led to the marriage has been not a love of each for the other, but the love which one has for the things which the other can, or is supposed to be able, to give. An utterly selfish love of self simply.

"We have had other stories which did the same thing to a greater or less extent, but few, if any, have in so entertaining and gripping a manner forced home the thought which seems to be continually in the mind of Mr. Norris in this last book of his.

"I like it, and shall have to re-order at a not far distant date."

Yours sincerely,

WALTER H. MOWRY

Another Brilliant Romance from the Master Story Teller

VICENTE BLASCO IBANEZ

THE TORRENT

All Algecira gossiped about the lovely stranger whose wonderful singing voice, floating down her villa above the orange groves stirred the whole town to wondering curiosity. Allured by her beauty and the mystery of her past, Rafael Brull, the young political leader of the district, became madly infatuated although she seemed unheeding of even his existence. Then came the torrent, his daring effort to reach her home through the flood, his amazing reception, and the growing acquaintance between the youthful, inexperienced young advocate and this fascinating woman of the world. She tells him of the training of a singer in the music-schools of Milan, of a life that has left her little to learn but thus far immune to love. And Rafael, the obscure deputy, young and unknown, dependent upon his mother for his personal expenses, dreams of winning this worldly-wise darling of great artists, handsome aristocrats, and wealthy nobles!

A WONDERFUL NOVEL

By EDWARD LUCAS WHITE

Author of that brilliant panorama of South American life, "El Supremo"

ANDIVIUS HEDULIO

Simply drips thrilling adventure

Imagine Hedulio, lord of a Sabine estate, an Emperor's favorite and wooer of the loveliest and wealthiest young widow in Rome. Suddenly he is involved in a conspiracy by the misleading report of an enemy's spy and only by the help of a slave who has been his companion from boyhood escapes arrest. Thus begins a flight that lasts for years—Roman master and Greek slave, dodging the network of the Emperor's guards; hiding the winter out in a bandit's lair; captured by genuine conspirators and carried back to Rome in order that they may point out the Emperor's person to the chosen assassin; an eleventh hour escape and a wild race north in the guise of imperial couriers; missing safety and death alike by a handbreadth at Marseilles, where the only chance for escape is to board a ship leaving for—Rome of all places in the world! These are only hints, a mere beginning of the thrilling history which holds the reader breathless.

A marvellous tale of Ancient Rome

So vivid is the whole picture that scenes of eighteen centuries ago seem less remote than those of Italy today. It is a literal re-creation of every phase, high or low, of the most wonderful society that the ancient world ever saw, with all its splendors, its peculiarities, its gods and traditions, its nobles and its officers, and its emperor, master of the world. And the skill with which the widely varying scenes are accurately set before the reader is amazing. Not merely every part of Rome from the Circus Maximus to the sailors' dives on the Tiber, but the slums of Marseilles, the palaces of Carthage, the stud-farms whence came the splendid horses to win or lose fortunes for their backers in the chariot races, the unknown world back of the beast-cage of the amphitheatre—all this and far more lives again and reveals its part in "the Grandeur that was Rome."

three "high spots" on the fall fiction horizon!

--- now we announce :

Ghitza and Other Romances of Gypsy Blood

By Konrad Bercovici

Ghitza, the title story of this volume, was selected by Edward J. O'Brien as the best story published during 1920.

No one has caught with such a sense of picturesque values the life of the vagabond, lawless gypsies of Eastern Europe as Konrad Bercovici. His gypsies live and suffer, perform profound and heroic actions, love like fire and sacrifice everything to their passions. Love and death and music are the three things that move the gypsy, and these stories of elemental passions must move any reader capable of a response to primal things. $2.00

Quiet Interior

By E. B. C. Jones

Katherine Mansfield in the London Athenaeum heralds "Quiet Interior" as a distinct contribution to English literature. Hugh Walpole picks this novel as one of the two best first novels of the year. It tells the story of two sisters in love with the same man, of a fine renunciation and of a beautiful adjustment to a sometimes cruel world. $2.00

Sareel

By Edith Dart

One of the best told love stories since Lorna Doone. The tale of an even more lovely and unsophisticated Tess, a haphazard marriage, the re-awakening of an earlier love, a mad flight, illness and convalescence—and finally the picturesque return to her greater love and her beloved moorlands. $2.00

Babette Bomberling's Bridegrooms

By Alice Berend

All hail! A real humorist, and a woman, and from Germany! Miss Berend may not be the German Dickens or Molière or Mark Twain, but in the manoeuvres of Mother Bomberling, the wife of the newly prosperous coffin-maker, to win for pretty Babette just the proper parti, she has written one of the funniest and one of the most shrewdly satirical stories that have come from the Continent in a long time. $1.75

BONI & LIVERIGHT

THE GAY COCKADE

By TEMPLE BAILEY

A group of unusual short stories by this versatile author which for their perfection of form and style are probably her best work. In the varied environments and widely different types which Miss Bailey has selected for her characters, she shows her remarkably keen insight into different natures and knowledge of the romance that comes to each one. The stories are written with all the daintiness and charm of expression shown in her previous work. Jacket and frontispiece in colors. Price, $2.00 net.

KING---OF KEARSARGE

By ARTHUR O. FRIEL

A big, powerful, outstanding, outdoor story of a man who was knocked down but who wouldn't stay down. Donald King, a lover of clean living, never seeks a fight, but when he is embroiled he fights to a finish. Interwoven with this theme, is a most charming and delicate romance that tends to offset the ruggedness of the tale. A story that will be appreciated by any red-blooded man or woman. Jacket in colors. Price, $2.00 net.

THE HUSBAND TEST

By MARY CAROLYN DAVIES

Bettina, a normal, wide-awake girl, becomes tired of every-day life and decides to see what is on the other side. She must choose between a staid young lawyer and a delightfully irresponsible poet. She gives each a trial, but finds that lotus leaves as a steady diet are not very substantial. The outcome is most unexpected. Jacket in colors. Price, $1.75 net.

THROUGH MOCKING BIRD CAP

By JARVIS HALL

A virile, ringing tale of life in the great Southwest near the border. Alec Stanley believes that his wounds have incapacitated him for active life. Some lively encounters with Mexican bandits prove the contrary. He wins his girl and loses his gloomy outlook. Jacket in colors. Price, $1.90 net.

LITTLE, BROWN & COMPANY'S NEW FALL FICTION

THE WASTED GENERATION

By OWEN JOHNSON

Out of the strongest group of novels ever assembled by us for publication in any one season, we have selected "The Wasted Generation" as our leading title. "The Wasted Generation" has the surge of full life in it—the throes of souls, the deep loves of men, the clash of rivalry, the pain of sacrifice. More than that, it is a convincing exposition of the failure of modern education to instil in our young men the ideals and the love of service which are inseparable from true Americanism. We consider "The Wasted Generation" the finest American novel that has ever come into our hands for publication and are planning to advertise it as thoroughly and energetically as it deserves.

THE DAY OF FAITH

By ARTHUR SOMERS ROCHE

Influenced by the sublime faith of Banker Bland Hendricks, that all men are perfect if we will only believe it, Jane Maynard astounds her friends by opening, in New York, the Bland Hendricks Foundation. Over the door are the words "My Neighbor is Perfect." Newspapers jeer and society scoffs, but the experiment brings forth fruit and a Day of Faith is appointed when the whole world will pause and repeat the mystic words "My neighbor is perfect." This is a novel in a thousand, with all the suspense, swift action and love interest of this author's previous books. The immensity of the idea has seldom been equalled in contemporary fiction.

Frontispiece. 12mo. $1.90 net. (October 15.)

NOBODY'S MAN

By E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM, author of "The Great Impersonation"

There is excitement a-plenty in this story of English politics, in which Andrew Tallente's career in Parliament is interwoven with and influenced by his love affair. Tallente is the victim of a nefarious plot which threatens to utterly ruin him and in which both his wife and his charming neighbor Lady Jane Parthington are actively interested. Mr. Oppenheim's inventive genius is unfailing and, as always, his dexterity in creating tangles and then unraveling them brings surprise after surprise to the reader.

THE SNOWSHOE TRAIL

By EDISON MARSHALL, author of "The Voice of the Pack"

A splendid story of adventure in the forest wilds, in which a woodsman and a city girl fight for life against the force of nature. A magnificent portrayal of the beauties and perils of the Northern winter, with strong situations, pulse-quickenning adventures and an appealing love interest, "The Snowshoe Trail" is a story you will never forget.

Frontispiece. 12mo. $1.90 net. (Ready).

THE FOG

By WILLIAM DUDLEY PELLE, author of "The Greater Glory"

This is the story of Nathan Forge's struggle against circumstances, his gropings to express himself and to live up to his ideals in the little village of Paris, Vermont. It is also an honest picture of life in a New England town. The story has romance; it has laughter and pathos and tragedy; it is a slice of too true, almost, to be classed as fiction, but raised to the interesting level of fiction by the art of the story-teller.

LITTLE, BROWN & COMPANY'S NEW FALL FICTION

IF WINTER COMES

By A. S. M. HUTCHINSON, author of "The Happy Warrior"

The enthusiastic praise accorded "If Winter Comes" indicates that it is unquestionably one of the most notable books of the year. Edwin Francis Edgett in The Boston Transcript pronounced it "A Masterpiece of Modern Fiction," while Professor William Lyon Phelps in The New York Times said "If Winter Comes" is one of the best books of our times." Miss Fanny Butcher in The Chicago Tribune characterized it as "An amazingly fine contribution to modern novel writing," and The Philadelphia Ledger said "'If Winter Comes' quite outdoes anything that has gone before." Published on August 12th, "If Winter Comes" has already attained its sixth printing—thirty-seventh thousand!

MARTIN CONISBY'S VENGEANCE

By JEFFERY FARNOL, author of "The Broad Highway"

This is a romance of the high seas in the pirate days of the Spanish Main when bitter feuds and desperate encounters, high courage and all-prevailing love went to the making of life and death. Many of the characters in "Black Bartlemy's Treasure" reappear in this story. Mr. Farnol's abounding vitality and inventive genius find the widest play in these stirring scenes, and the outcome of Martin Conisby's passionate thirst for vengeance will delight every reader.

THE LARK

By DANA BURNET

"The Lark" is a novel of rare literary distinction, in which the theme of sex is developed in an unusual manner, and with an artistry that differentiates the story from the casual contemporary romance. "The Lark" is a real achievement, a drama of character rather than events, and its vividness and genuineness will impress every reader.

Frontispiece. 12mo. $1.90 net. (October 8).

TROUBLE-THE-HOUSE

By KATE JORDAN, author of "The Next Corner"

The story of Susy Gilvarry, called Trouble-The-House by her distracted family, is told from the viewpoint of the amused and sympathetic adult, looking back. As "Penrod" revealed boyhood in print, so this tale where a school child melts into a "flapper" makes girlhood's humors, tempests and strivings come to full being before one. Susy is a constant surprise and delight.

THE PASSING OF THE OLD WEST

By HAL G. EVARTS, author of "The Yellow Horde"

In this book the passing of the old West is unfolded—the disappearance first of the beaver, then the buffalo, then the wild pigeon, next the timberlands, and finally the inroads made on the wild life of the Yellowstone Park. It is an indictment in story form of the triumph of the dollar-seeking American over the lovers of nature and animal life. Robert Sterling Yard, Executive Secretary of The National Parks Association, says, "It is the most powerful presentation of the case for conservation I have seen, and a fine story to read."

J. R. GREEN, M. A.

A SHORT HISTORY OF THE ENGLISH PEOPLE

ILLUSTRATED EDITION

Edited by MRS. J. R. GREEN and MISS KATE NORGATE

A New Edition

Ready October 1.

Four Volumes

THE Illustrated Edition of Green's Short History has long been out of print and the demand for a new edition has been so constant that this present one has been prepared. This work is one of extraordinary merit. The qualities which have given it its great popularity are the brilliancy of its style, the breadth of its generalization, the vividness with which it portrays the general drift of events, the clearness with which it shows the relations of cause and effect, the prominence which it gives to the literary and social progress of the people, and the skill with which the author made his selections and exclusions.

The work contains 1316 illustrations which are themselves the work of the people century by century. Men, manners and things are finely emphasized by the work of old scribes or artists to whom they were present realities. The selection of illustrations was determined by a desire to get the contemporary view rather than by the canons of art. For the early life of our forefathers, illustrations have been chosen from household implements, vessels, armor, or ornaments preserved in English, Danish and Norse collections. From the eighth to the sixteenth century the great mass of illustrations have been taken from illuminated manuscripts preserved in the British Museum, Bodleian Library, Oxford Colleges, University Library of Cambridge and the Libraries of Corpus Christi and Trinity Colleges. Specimens of early printing, wood-cut title pages, figures from the corners of maps and beautiful engravings of the eighteenth century are reproduced, and satirical prints, broadsides, popular ballads, common playing cards and tradesmen's advertisements have been used as freely as the more "artistic" materials. In the front of each volume is a descriptive index giving the source, history and explanation of every illustration in the work, these descriptions running in some instances to two or three hundred words.

PAPER AND PRESSWORK—The volumes have been printed with great care on a very smoothly finished paper bringing out the illustrations in the most effective manner.

BINDING—The volumes measure 6¾ by 9½ inches and are bound in Holliston Buckram, gold tops, uncut edges, silk head and footbands, with panelled backs, library style, in ink and gold.

LIFE OF

SAMUEL JOHNSON

Edited by GEORGE BIRKBECK HILL

Including Boswell's JOURNAL OF A TOUR TO THE HEBRIDES
and Johnson's DIARY OF A JOURNEY INTO NORTH WALES

SIX VOLUMES

NOW READY

IN 1804 Edmond Malone in the preface to his edition of Boswell's Johnson said, "Highly as this work is now estimated, it will, I am confident, be still more valued by posterity a century hence, when the excellent and extraordinary man, whose wit and wisdom are here recorded, shall be viewed at a still greater distance; and the instruction and entertainment they afford will at once produce reverential gratitude, admiration and delight." In 1823 Sir Walter Scott called this the best book that was ever written and in 1831 Macaulay said, "Homer is not more decidedly the first of heroic poets, Shakespeare is not more decidedly the first of dramatists, Demosthenes is not more decidedly the first of orators, than Boswell is the first of biographers. We are not sure that there is in the whole history of the human intellect so strange a phenomenon as this book." In 1888 Edmund Gosse said in his Eighteenth Century Literature, "The universal verdict of mankind has placed this work among the five or six most interesting and stimulating of the world's books."

The Hill edition of Boswell was completed in 1887, contains thousands of notes, the result of a lifetime study of the subject, years of research and investigation, and is acknowledged to be the best edition ever published. Both the English and the American editions of Hill's Boswell's Johnson have been out of print for several years and this new edition from the original plates is made in response to urgent demands of readers, scholars, libraries and universities throughout England and America.

PAPER—A special pure white wove, light in weight and of superior quality, was made for use in this edition.

TYPE—The type is large, clear, and distinct, from the original plates.

PRESSWORK—The presswork is sharp and of even color, the excellence of the type-plates making possible a fine piece of printing.

BINDING—The set is bound in genuine Holliston buckram, gold tops, uncut edges, silk head and footbands, with labeled backs library style.

MEMOIRS OF THE COURT OF ENGLAND

Limited Edition de Luxe

WESTMINSTER EDITION

THIRTY VOLUMES

THIS EDITION was limited to eight hundred copies. Three hundred were sold by the publishers and the remainder placed in storage. While in storage a large portion of the stock was destroyed. The limited number remaining we are now offering. Original Japan paper title pages in two colors and black.

THE PAPER used in these thirty volumes is the finest quality of pure white laid, genuine deckle edge, every page bearing the watermark of the publisher.

THE TYPE used in the composition was double agate, or eleven point, well leaded or spaced, thirty lines to each page, allowing wide, generous margins.

THE PRESSWORK was done at the Colonial Press of Boston.

THE ILLUSTRATIONS are 188 in number, as follows:

THIRTY BEAUTIFUL AQUARELLE frontispieces on white plate paper done by hand in delicate colors, as dainty and distinct as ivory miniatures.

TWENTY-SIX ORIGINAL ETCHINGS made for this work by Adrian Marcel, on heavy Japan paper illustrating striking situations in the text.

TWENTY-EIGHT PHOTO-ETCHINGS on Japan paper reproducing paintings and rare old engravings of the ancient castles, palaces, abbeys, bridges, gardens, streets, prisons, towers, theatres, etc., etc., mentioned in the text. These photo-etchings faithfully copy the work of contemporary painters and engravers.

ONE HUNDRED AND FOUR PHOTO-ETCHINGS on Japan paper reproducing authentic contemporary portraits of the principal personages mentioned by Jesse. These are all by contemporary painters and engravers.

BINDING. The set is uniformly bound in Holliston cloth, uncut, genuine deckle edges, gold tops, silk head and footbands, with neat two-color library labels. The volumes are six by nine inches and are one and three-eighths inches in thickness. Complete set packed in strong wooden box.

OUR STANDARD SETS

are superior in every way to all other lines in the trade. These fine editions are always in stock with us and can be quoted and sold by the bookseller, if they are not on his shelves with absolute assurance that he can deliver to his customers.

Every one admits the merit of large clear type, consequently it should be borne in mind that we own and control the most extensive large type standard set plant in the world, that our plates are practically new, are used by us exclusively and are most carefully handled in printing.

In the cloth books we use nothing but the best quality of Holliston Buckram and the leather volumes are in genuine leather, with no substitution or camouflage. Quality distinguishes this new line and finer books for a discriminating trade have never been offered to the bookseller.

EVEN a glance through our Fall list of authors shows that it possesses a distinction of names frequently successful with the reading public. Some of these names attract readers in a way well-nigh sensational; others have earned integrity with genuine literary skill; and others, of course, are from that small body of authors called masters. We feel confident it is a well-balanced list. Therefore we have particularized (in the next three pages, which see); and we suggest, unless you file your whole copy of Publishers' Weekly accessibly, that you clip this four page insert and place with your September-October memoranda.

FALL PUBLICATIONS from our presses have been accepted so well by a large bookselling force and an eager public that we are inclined to believe two things any publisher likes to believe. One is that we have chosen good work to publish. Another is that we were right in reducing the retail price of our books. We find by experience that calling the attention of readers to the price of novels and other books increases the sale. DO YOU DO THAT?

MCCLURG'S FALL FICTION

The Mucker

EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

A character as enthralling and as fascinating as the world-famous "Tarzan" is Billy Byrne (The Mucker).

Born in the slums of a great city, reared among thieves and thugs, Billy was as tough as they make 'em. Then he was forced out into the bigger world and many strange and startling adventures befell him. Force of circumstances made him the champion of a girl, an aristocrat of the class he so ardently hated. Billy's viewpoint of life gradually changed. (Price $1.90)

"Beau" Rand

CHARLES ALDEN SELTZER

Seltzer writes virile stuff. He writes always of the Old West and the Old West was essentially virile. No better western stories are being written than Seltzer's yarns.

"Beau" was the son of an outlaw. It was a poor start because to the unthinking the son of a "bad man" must necessarily be bad. Then he had an uncanny way with a gun. He could draw just a shade quicker than anyone else, and that shade made all the difference. "Beau's" story is one of Seltzer's very best. (Price $1.90)

Trail's End

GEORGE W. OGDEN

A Frontier town was not exactly Paradise in early western days, but of all the rowdy, lawless, evil towns on earth Ascalon at the end of the Kansas trail was the worst.

A man came to Ascalon, a two-fisted, fearless, clean-minded man. The evil element ran him out of town. But, he came back, and the tale of his coming was told and retold for years after Ascalon was a place fit to live in. Ogden has written some corking stories of frontier days, but never one better than this. (Price $1.90)

Gift of the Desert

RANDALL PARRISH

Action is the characteristic feature of Parrish tales, and so the interest never lags and there are no dull pages to skip. "Gift of the Desert" is a thriller from start to finish, with a strong and exceedingly well-developed plot. It has to do with the adventures of an American girl and the "Frisco Kid" (Alias Captain Daniel Kelleen of the Service) in spoiling the plans of a gang of desperadoes who terrorized the Mexican border. Six from a dozen as good:

Working North from Patagonia

By Harry A. Franck, author of "Vagabonding Down the Andes," "Tramping Through Mexico," "A Vagabond Journey Around the World," etc.

Mr. Franck's rich narrative of the second half of his four-years' exploration of South America—largely off the beaten track. Together with his Andes book, it gives a complete and veracious picture of great value to those who wish or need to know what this still unfamiliar neighbor-continent is like. Illustrated, of course.

Price $5.00

The Book of Jack London

By Charmian London, author of "The Log of the Snark," "Our Hawaii."

One of the most remarkable biographies ever written: the story of a famous writer's life written by his wife almost as if she were himself. His most variegated career is neither shirked nor prettified. Many letters, a great number of intimate, informal photographs.

2 vols. Price $10.00

The Pacific Triangle

By Sydney Greenbie, author of "Japan: Real and Imaginary."

A book about all the countries which are points of interest in connection with the Far Eastern program of the Disarmament Conference. Frederick O'Brien, author of "White Shadows in the South Seas," says: "he has made a unique book, so honest as to shame the average author, and so earnest as to win our confidence throughout." 50 illustrations.

Price $4.00

The Fruits of Victory

By Norman Angell, author of "The Great Illusion."

A sequel to the sensational "The Great Illusion," and is attracting as much attention. See reviews! It is a cumulative success, which will rise still higher, for Mr. Angell has provoked controversy by pointing his finger to patriotism as the cause of famine, plague and war.

Price $3.00

Adventures in Swaziland

By Owen Rowe O'Neil

The plain facts of what Dr. O'Neil has seen as boy and man in South Africa are sheer, lurid, raw, barbarian melodrama of the tensest and most exciting sort. A new conception of today's Africa will be given most people by this narrative of an adventurous (and very prominent) Boer. Most fascinatingly illustrated.

Price $4.00

Lost Ships and Lonely Seas

By Ralph D. Paine, author of "Fighting Fleets," "Buried Treasure," "Ships and Sailors of Old Salem," etc.

The singing surges of old ocean, the wind in sails, the perils and stark adventure of old salts. True old chronicles of famous voyages of sailing days, beautifully retold, appealing to all those thousands whose feet wear dusty pavements while their souls grow parched with longing for the sea. Exceptionally attractive jacket and illustrations.

Price $4.00

We are publishing in all seventeen non-fiction titles up to September 30. Some of those we could not find room to describe on this page are exceptionally important: we shall of course be glad to send you our autumn catalogue with the new titles described at length, if you will give us the opportunity.

353 Fourth Avenue

THE CENTURY CO.

New York City

Six that promise best:

Messer Marco Polo

By Donn Byrne, author of "Stories Without Women," "The Stranger's Banquet," etc.

This is too good a book to be an average success. It might be a failure. But there is a stir about it already—in the Century offices; among various critics and colyumists who have read it. We are wagering that it is going to be one of those "have you read?" successes. It is a surprise, a new thing in romantic fiction, and sticks out as something different among a thousand books. It may, or it may not, "go big." It may be a rage as furious as "The Young Visitor." We only know, at present, that it has "the goods," it is unique. Price $1.25

Gibbeted Gods

By Lillian Barrett, author of "The Sinister Revel"

A novel clever, sophisticated, sparkingly done—and sincere. It has some of the best qualities of good English work, and is purely American. Its readers will be those who appreciate really significant fiction, extremely well handled. Price $1.90

Threads

By Frank Stayton, author of a number of successful (English) plays.

This is an English novel, with a plot so remarkable that it has already been seized upon for dramatization as a feature of next winter's London theatre season. It's queer story is developed with a good deal of keen observation and most readable humor. Price $1.90

The Crystal Heart

By Phyllis Bottome, author of "The Dark Tower," "A Servant of Royalty," etc.

Has the author's loveliest creation for heroine. These books which strongly center about one notable character are frequently the author's best successes. What happens to Joy will create discussion. Any novel by Phyllis Bottome has friends, and this is her most interesting, and most challenging, work. Price $1.90

Quin

By Alice Hegan Rice, author of "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," "Lovey Mary," etc.

Is a full-length novel with a most engaging young American for hero, and all Mrs. Rice's humor, charm and skill employed in creating a full stage of delightful characters. Price $2.00

Where the Young Child Was

By Marie Conway Oemler, author of "Slippy McGee," "The Purple Heights," "A Woman Named Smith."

This popular novelist has done a remarkably appealing cycle of Christmas stories which will be one of the most wanted Christmas gift books of the year. Price $1.90

We are publishing in all eleven fiction titles this fall. We believe they are all worth while, or we shouldn't have done it, but we hadn't room to talk about them all. Our catalogue is at your service with the rest of our novels and the best list of juveniles we ever published.

AMANDA

A Daughter of the Mennonites

By ANNA BALMER MYERS

Author of
"PATCHWORK"

Jacket in color and three pencil drawings by Helen Mason Grose. $2.00 net.

The quaint humor and human appeal of this story are irresistible. AMANDA touches the heart strings by those qualities which make the whole world kin.

NATALIE PAGE

By KATHARINE HAVILAND TAYLOR

Author of
"CECILIA OF THE PINK ROSES"

Colored jacket. $2.00 net.

Suddenly transplanted from old Virginia, Natalie Page, young, pretty, unspoiled and a baseball pitcher of considerable renown, finds the restraint of polite society unbearable.

Natalie attempts to "start things moving" with the result that she becomes hopelessly entangled.

Humorously written with a delicate romance interwoven in the plot.

THE PANELLED ROOM

By RUPERT SARGENT HOLLAND

Author of
"THE MAN IN THE MOONLIGHT"

Colored jacket. $2.00 net.

A thrilling story in which a debonair Frenchman plays the part of fate in that tragic meeting which takes place in the famous panelled room.

THE HEAVIEST PIPE

By ARTHUR W. PATTERSON

Colored jacket. $2.00 net.

Appealed to by an unknown young lady,
Chichester Somers, Esq., of Boston, commonly called Chick, promises to pose as the lady's husband for a short time.

Surprised by Chick's college chum, the situation becomes complicated and difficult.

The young lawyer is thrust into a series of adventures, and eventually lands in Maine on an island said to be haunted. There is a search for treasure in which the heaviest pipe plays an important part.

A story of love, mystery, thrills and a great deal of humor.

By ERIC LEADBITTER

SHEPHERD'S WARNING

To the growing circle of readers that appreciate "Nocturne" and similar works of fiction, Leadbitter is becoming increasingly popular. His last novel is a masterpiece worthy of Hardy. $2.00 net.

THE ROAD TO NOWHERE

This is a strong story of unusual distinction. The author conveys a striking impression of reality and describes his characters with a sure and true insight.

The scene is laid in London, and deals with the complications resulting from the intimate association of the people of the middle class with the aristocracy. $2.00 net.

RAIN BEFORE SEVEN

Mr. Leadbitter's first novel, set in the temperamental world of music, remarkably true and vivid in its study of human character, is convincing proof that this young English author is a master both as to story and style. $2.00 net.

The Making of Our Country BY SMITH BURNHAM

Written since the World War, this new History of the United States sets forth from a new point of view. Our marvelous industrial growth, our territorial expansions, and our participation in the World War have demanded this new perspective. The social, industrial, and intellectual aspects of our national life receive adequate attention. Wars and battles are not unduly emphasized, but the significance of all important conflicts is clearly shown.

CONTAINS REPRODUCTIONS OF THE FAMOUS FERRIS PAINTINGS

The book contains a wealth of illustrations, with every picture introduced with a definite purpose of "reading into" the interesting descriptive matter. Among the illustrations are eight reproductions in color of famous historical paintings from the collection of J. L. G. Ferris, which have never appeared in any previous book. The book contains 350 illustrations and also maps in colors and in black and white. 8vo. 637 pages. $3.00 NET

There is a distinct need for such a history as Smith Burnham's, "The Making of Our Country." We welcome its publication. Furthermore, we congratulate the John C. Winston Co., upon its effective make-up and remarkably agreeable price.—Charles E. Rush, Librarian Indianapolis Public Library.

THE BEGINNING OF WISDOM

By Stephen Vincent Benét

The very frank story of a very young man. The story of Philip, his idyllic birth in California, the humorous surroundings of his rearing, the vitality of his years at Yale, his picturesque adventures in Arizona, his days in the army, and above all, the tender scenes of his young love, are the quintessence of poetry presented in the form of penetrating realism.

Merry Tales for Children

By CAROLYN SHERWIN BAKER

Every child loves to laugh, and the "funny" story is not only the child's but his need. This collection of humorous stories supplies, not only entertainment for boys and girls, but each of its pages carries a hidden lesson made permanent in the heart through the fine, sure philosophical laughter. The author has drawn upon practically every source, old and modern, for the best in child humor. The stories are tied under the important headings of those interests which, properly fed, influence the future life.

Lorna Doone

By R. D. BLACKMORE

Bridged for juvenile readers by Carolyn Sherwin Bailey. For young folks of 14 to 16 years

This beautiful volume of Lorna Doone is published in answer to the demand of librarians for an edition of this famous classic adapted to the needs of juvenile readers. The text itself is unchanged, reprinted from the original, except that by judicious elimination of some of the lengthy descriptive matter the action is quickened and the interest of younger readers more easily sustained. Illustrated in color by Harold Brett. Price, $3.50

The Greatest of Romantic Classic Retold for Children

The Three Musketeers

By ALEXANDER DUMAS

Edited By Carolyn Sherwin Bailey
Illustrated in Color by Harold Brett

This edition of the Dumas masterpiece is a real achievement in the editing of a famous classic, presenting it in practically the exact words of the author, yet by elimination of questionable passages, making of it a book which the most conscientious parents will not hesitate to place in the hands of their children.

All the incidents of stirring adventures, the shining examples of loyalty and courage, the fellowship and sympathy of the companions in arms, are retained. These are, in fact, emphasized for the child reader by the deletion of the armours of Milady and details of court intrigue of which the normal child understands little and cares less. Cloth. Price, $3.00

Rick and Ruddy in Camp

By HOWARD R. GARIS. Illustrated
by MILO K. WINTER

Rick Dalton and Ruddy, the dog, go camping with a troop of Boy Scouts. Their adventures, afloat on a nearby lake and blazing new trails through dense woods, are further livened by the discovery of a mysterious cave and by encounters with unfriendly neighbors in an adjacent camp. A partially blind girl proves herself a real heroine, despite her affliction, and her brother whose cruelty to animals arouses Rick's ire, is made to see the light of kindness when he is saved from calamity by the timely assistance of Rick and Ruddy.

Price $1.75

Twinkly Eyes and The Lone Lake Folk

By ALLEN CHAFFEE

More true-to-nature stories, the scene laid in the North Woods where Baldy the eagle and the Fish Hawk and Kingfisher families can still best the mere human angler at landing a speckled trout, and where Twinkly Eyes, the bear has new adventures, and makes new acquaintances in the animal kingdom.

THE NATIONALLY ADVERTISED LINE

A great advertising to help you sell

OUR 1921 Fall advertising campaign is designed not only to help you sell more Rand McNally juvenile books—it also represents the best possible means of interesting a larger public in Juvenile books.

Rand McNally Juvenile books have won a high reputation for literary quality, artistic excellence, and fine typography. Their popularity is increasing continually, and the line is now recognized as standard. It is this fact that caused us to plan for 1921 an extensive advertising program. Here a highly successful standard line is brought directly to the attention of millions of readers, through forceful advertisements appearing continuously through the year in national mediums. The results of this publicity inevitably mean largely increased sales for the dealer.

The Open Door To the Fairyland of Dreams

Memories of boyhood and girlhood days are rose-tinted with recollections of precious hours
"when Daddy read," and later of that joyful day when the magic story unfolded itself before our

NEW FALL

JUVENILES

THIS year we have added two entirely new series to our Juvenile list, and have again put on the Putnam Hall Series. In June the Slumbet Town Tales, by Arthur Scott Bailey, with which you are, no doubt, familiar by this time. Mr. Bailey, as the author of the Sleepy Time and Tuck Me In Tales, needs no introduction to you.

In October comes the Little Jack Rabbit Books by David Cory, who is rapidly coming into the limelight as a writer of very entertaining stories for children. He has had a number of his stories serialized in the New York Evening Mail and syndicated throughout the country. His well-known Jumble Book proved very popular with the trade last year and spread his fame through many homes, so his is by no means an unknown name to your customers.

There has been such a demand for the Putnam Hall Series by Arthur M. Winfield that we have again placed these books on our list. They are companion stories to the Rover Boys Series, and we have every expectation of their proving almost as popular.

THE ONE DOMINANT THOUGHT

IS TURNOVER

What to buy with quickest selling and the least left-over is always the problem. What is the safe purchase, what line has the general appeal, the price appeal, and the easy selling points? Does not the Grosset & Dunlap Popular Copyright fiction and Juvenile series cover these points? They are the continuous selling lines with added emphasis at the Holiday season, no matter in what town or in whose store. They fit in.

From these lists you can select what will please mother, father, brother, sister and the kiddies, everyone to whom a book is thought of for a Holiday gift. They can truly be termed the best and safest lines in the book field. The Grosset & Dunlap manila list is the nearest approach to one hundred per cent sure thing purchase index.

Not to have a comprehensive and liberal stock of these publications for this Holiday season would be a commercial error. The book business does not suffer in times of depression. For obvious reasons this Fall's business will be very large. Our entire force, sales and otherwise, are primed and set for service and satisfaction. We await your pleasure.

"And what of me?" she asked in a low voice when he did not speak. "What is to become of me?"

It was the moment he had waited for. He flung it straight at her quivering lips. "That is Cleve Harkness' affair, isn't it . . . not mine, any longer?"

"Oh--" she shrank away, hiding her face in the curve of her arm like a child that had been unfairly struck.

The THRESHOLD

An Important Novel of American Life

By Evelyn Campbell

We believe that The Threshold is not only a novel of intensely interesting quality, but also an important contribution to the fiction of the year. Here are our reasons:

¶It is a novel of American life dealing with a problem inherent in our social structure—the right of youth to become the arbiter of its own destiny.

¶Its principal characters are five widely dissimilar people each representative of one or another element in our life today and each struggling for some kind of victory over environment.

¶It is a study in contrasts between two kinds of love—the love that is a physical fascination and the love that is the fruit of a spiritual impulse.

¶It deals with situations which are universally appealing because they are parts of everyone's experience.

¶It is a book which, however significant as a study of contemporary life, is above all a dramatic and moving story.

Moffat Yard Fall BooksThe Song of the Blood Red Flower*By Johannes Linnankoski(Translated from the Finnish by W. Worster, M. A.)*

Ready Sept. 15th
Second edition of the over-night success

Says THE NEW YORK TIMES—"One can not doubt the complete success of the author—his is a story of youth, of its wildness and intemperance, and its bitter struggle to reassert itself in the face of the odds of past failings.

Says Llewellyn Jones—"If ever there was justification for the press agenting of an author, it is here. For this first book of Linnankoski's made accessible to us in English, reveals a man who is a mature student of life, who has an eye for the depths as well as for the shimmering and beautiful surface."

Says THE BOSTON HERALD—Linnankoski writes with a frankness and restraint, as rare as it is effective. He is a dramatist, he is a preacher. The novel bears the unmistakable stamp of genius."

Three Crosses (From the Italian of Federigo Tozzi)

Ready Oct. 15th
the target of Europe's leading critics

It has been said that nothing so good as THREE CROSSES has been produced in Italy since Verga. In this compact novel, the action of which takes place entirely within the four walls of an antique shop in Siena, the author proves himself an able portrayer of human emotions. The impression that this book leaves on one, is as extremely powerful as the means employed to that end are simple. The shop in question is owned by three brothers, one of whom commits a forgery that his brothers may be spared their creditors.

$2.00 NetGOD AND WOMAN*By JOHAN BOJER*$2.00 Net

"The Great Hunger" and "The Power of a Lie" have given the famous Norwegian novelist, Johan Bojer, rank in the world's literature with the acknowledged masters of fiction. In "God and Woman" Bojer turns his attention to woman and for the first time builds his novel around a central character who craves to know the joys of motherhood and for whom Fate has apparently determined another destiny.

Forward From BabylonBy LOUIS GOLDING*$2.00 Net

In a recent number of The Freeman, "Forward from Babylon" is accredited with establishing Mr. Golding, its young author, as one of the significant figures among younger English novelists. This is the story of a boy whose family have fled to England from the horrors of Russia. Amidst new surroundings and the influences of a new world and a new people the evolution of Peter's character begins. It is the evolution of an intelligent child into a complex and feverish being.

THE FIFTH FINGER

By WILLIAM Le QUEUX, author of "The Four Faces," etc., etc. $2.00 Net

William Le Queux needs no introduction to one of the largest reading publics ever to be acquired by a writer of detective stories. His latest book deals with the adventures of Betty Bolland, woman of mystery, whose activities in London society and the underworld furnish the basis for one of the best mystery stories to be written by Le Queux.

Announcing the New Series of Business "Problem" Books

By members of the faculty of Harvard University Graduate School of Business Administration.

CHARACTERISTIC of the Shaw House to keep pace with the development of business thought and conditions this new Series marks a definite departure from the ordinary type of business book for study classes in colleges and universities and among executives in private concerns.

Instead of merely giving rules for guidance it presents the groups of problems which have proved so successful as the basis of training young men for business at the Harvard Business School. The problems are in the actual form in which they have come before business men and are accompanied by questions which are designed to bring out the important factors to be considered in the solutions. There are also references to supplementary readings which provide the necessary background for the students to handle the problems intelligently.

WATT AUTUMN FICTION

A New Novel by Mrs. ALFRED SIDGWICK

LAW AND OUTLAW

One had broken the man-made letter of the law—for love and through an inexorable fate. In the eyes of the world she was an outlaw, a woman who had forever forfeited the right to love or even see her own child. The other had obeyed those laws to the letter. In the eyes of the world it was right that she who became that little child's stepmother, should do with her as she willed. With this interesting premise Mrs. Alfred Sidgwick, whose stories of the conflicting psychology of women have recently brought her into so much prominence as a favorite author, has woven a tale filled from the very start with a heart interest that never lags. It is a splendid modern version of Cinderella.

A Humorous Story by ROY NORTON

MIXED FACES

Everyone is a salesman. You know Roy Norton's whimsical character creations in "The Boomers," "The Plunderer," etc. Imagine his opportunities with joke-loving Jimmy Gollop, salesman, and pompous Judge Granger with high political aspirations. They could pass as twins, and when Jimmy is mistaken for the Judge and must address a meeting of women on suffrage there is plenty of fun, but that's not all—how about getting sweethearts mixed up. If you're a salesman read "Mixed Faces," but don't stop there—have everyone read and enjoy it.

A New Romance by RUBY AYRES

THE MARRIAGE OF BARRY WICKLOW

Rarely does there come to any writer so sudden and so sure a vogue as that which Ruby Ayres has enjoyed during the past year—the demand for her work being such that magazines, book publishers and daily newspapers have all vied with one another in obtaining a story from her. A new novel by the author of "Richard Chatterton" is sure to be popular and "The Marriage of Barry Wicklow" is undoubtedly one of her most thrilling love stories.

DREAMY HOLLOW

— a Long Island Romance — by

SUMNER C. BRITTON

With snap and go this story grabs the reader and hangs tight from start to finish. It is modern, up-to-date, and something to think about.

IT'S DIFFERENT

—a novel combining the variant tendencies of human emotions—

A Gripping Story of Big Business,
Love and Secret Service

NOT A DETECTIVE STORY—but there's the most human detective in this thrilling new novel. He's keen-witted, sharp-tongued, long-headed—hard, shrewd—but on the square.

EVERYONE—from youth to age, will fall in love with this fine character—a detective with a heart.

There's Action at Every Step

From Wall Street to Great South Bay, geographically—that's its locale. No world-wide scope is required for better action. Warm-blooded people, who love excitement, will spend anxious hours while reading this story with a new angle.

Dealers from coast to coast know that Long Island is a national playground—another name for Romanceland. It is the Mecca of touring motorists, and week-end visitors—and somewhere on the island is "Dreamy Hollow," a scene of enchantment. Thereby hangs a tale. We shall advertise largely.

The Medici Society of America Announces for Fall Publication:

TRAVELS IN ARABIA DESERTA. BY CHARLES M. DOUGHTY. A new edition (entirely unabridged) reset from new type, with maps, plans and illustrations as in the original edition published in 1888 by the Cambridge University Press. With a new preface by the author and an introduction by T. E. LAWRENCE, formerly colonel on Lord Allenby's staff and liaison officer with the Emir Feisal; Fellow of All Souls, Oxford. In two volumes, cloth gilt, $48.00 net.

'One of the six best books of travel in the world and probably the very greatest in our own language; a classic as safe as Marco Polo. This new edition will come upon new readers like the raising of sunken treasure to make them rich. The volumes offer a mental experience, penetrating, unforgettable, more like living than reading. So like living, you can scarcely persuade yourself but that you, too, have been in Arabia.'—J. L. GARVIN in The London Observer.

THE ROADMENDER. BY MICHAEL FAIRLESS. Riccardi Press edition limited to 1000 copies for sale printed in the well-known Riccardi type on hand-made paper, with silk marker and head-band. Bound in cloth with Michalet board sides, lettered in gold, $8.75 net. Or bound in whole natural grain parchment, gold lettering, $15.00 net. Fifteen copies (12 only for sale) have been printed on vellum, bound in limp Kelmscott vellum, gold lettering, silk ties, $135.00 net.

LE MORTE DARTHUR. The Book of King Arthur and of his Noble Knights of the Round Table. BY SIR THOMAS MALORY. A new edition. Illustrated with 36 water-colors by W. RUSSELL FLINT, reproduced by Medici quality four-color process. (Over 1,000 pages of letter-press and illustrations.) In two volumes. Royal 8vo, cloth, fully gilt, design from a binding ex libris Anne de Bretagne, $15.00 net; or bound in whole natural grain parchment, $30.00 net.

A GARDEN OF HERBS. Being a practical handbook to the making of an old English herb garden, together with numerous receipts from contemporary authorities. By ELEANOR SINCLAIR ROHDE. In demy 8vo, cloth gilt, 210 pages, with 14 illustrations in black and white, $4.00 net.

'A delightful picture of the old herb garden . . . not only an interesting and learned book, but also one much needed.'—The Times.
' . . . The most fragrant book that I ever read. . . . Not only is the book fragrant from cover to cover, but it is practical, too.'—Punch.

THE ROMANTIC AGE IN ITALIAN LITERATURE. BY ANTONIO CIPPICO, Lecturer in Italian Language and Literature in the University of London. 12mo, cloth, $1.50 net.

THE HIGHWAY OF THE CROSS, depicted by Fra Angelico in Ten Plates, reproduced by Medici quality four-colour process from the originals in Florence. With an Introduction from Thomas à Kempis; Text in the words of the Bible. Authorized Version; Conclusion from "The Christian Year." Medium 8vo, paper boards, with plate, $2.00 net.

This is the Dante year. PROFESSOR RICHARD T. HOLBROOK, head of the department of French of the University of California, has written the authoritative work on

Portraits of Dante from Giotto to Raffael

Illustrated, $7.50 net.

Send for descriptive circular.

NOTE: Booksellers all over the country, particularly those in touch with colleges and museums, are more and more realizing on the value of their connections by carrying the famous reproductions in full color of great paintings by great masters in the world's galleries and private collections. The Medici Society will gladly send free to any dealer its illustrated catalogue, which is usually sold at 25 cents a copy.

MEDICI PRINTS

Booksellers with discerning customers make ready sales of the Medici Greeting-cards and Calendars. There is a large list of them to choose from, and they are very beautiful.

High Tide of Publishing

THE Fall Announcement Number of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is always a milestone in the year of book business, as it marks the beginning of the busiest of book seasons. The publishing plans for the year have reached their height, and publication dates follow each other rapidly. In spite of the strong tendency in recent years to extend publishing and bookselling generally round the twelve months, there will always be a crescendo of interest in the fall, and the significance of the year's book demands are found in the announcements as publishers make their plans ready.

This year these announcements will be turned to with more than usual interest. The effect of war and after-war has been to make publishers weigh new enterprises with great care and to watch more carefully for new tendencies of interest. The books that they emphasize in the advertising pages of this issue are the result of their most careful estimation of the general reading tendencies of the year. The difficulties in manufacture have undoubtedly affected the situation, and with that in mind it is significant to know that the total number of entries in the index this year is practically the same as in 1920. The total number of entries in this year's index is 5,556 against 5,660 last year. This does not mean the number of books issued, as there are always two entries of the book under author and title, and sometimes three in the case of a series. It probably means a little over 2,500 new books, not more than a variation of 40 or 50 from last year. In all the book manufacturing centers there has been continuous trouble for twelve months in manufacturing, and a difficult and long wage settlement in New York increased printing costs late last fall, and the change in New York from the 48 to the 44-hour week May 1st made another increase. There has been a long continued printing strike in Boston, and also in Philadelphia. In Chicago the unions are now asking for more money, and the situation may be cleared up only by having the city completely on an open shop basis. While costs in paper have dropped rapidly, the costs of type-setting and plate-making have found no relief. In the binding end the situation was finally cleared when the Employing Book Binders in New York took the bull by the horns and went on the open shop basis.

It is probable that the publishing lists would have been even heavier if all these difficulties had not existed, but it may be that the sifting of titles and the publication of only the most necessary books was the best result that could have happened. Between January and August booksellers have almost completely cleared their decks and are feeling confident of the fall business. Buyers who delayed in the spring are now reported as crowding the New York sales rooms with a good placing of orders. Such a result after the most difficult and puzzling two years that the book-trade has ever seen gives reason for congratulation to both the publishing and retail end of the business.

American History in Schools

JUDGING by the number of associations which are making a point of protesting against the character of the teaching of American history in schools, it may soon become as impossible to teach American history as it is to teach the Bible.

Again and again people have urged that the Scriptures be more widely used as a text, only to find that this cannot be done without treading on the feelings of some group or other. Even the reading of the Scriptures opens the discussion of what selections should be read and from what version.

The teaching of American history is now under similar fire. The Knights of Columbus say they are interested to see that American history is taught right; the Spanish War veterans, meeting in convention, charge that British propaganda is evident in the revised editions of the public schools; the American Federation of Labor believes that our histories are biased by being planned and written by those who have little appreciation of labor's part; and the South has always been critical of our handling of the period from the Missouri Compromise to the end of Reconstruction. This will put the publishers of schoolbooks under heavy cross fire, and an adoption of a text-book for a state under such conditions will mean a battle, indeed.

Between those who look on the Revolution as a sign of the inevitable tyranny of the English throne and those who look on it as part of the English liberal movement; between those who see vast importance in the nineteenth century industrial evolution and those who see only political events in that period; between those who think that tariff and Northern domination brought about the great American crisis as well as slavery and secession; between those who think this is solely an Anglo-Saxon country and those who think other nations have made significant contributions, there is going to be continuous discussion which may do much to educate the country on these points, but which is likely to cause severe complications regarding textbooks.

Wilson Books in First Editions

THE current advertisement by Doubleday, Page & Co. of Tumulty's book on Wilson, Ray Stannard Baker's book on the Peace Conference, and the Letters of Walter Hines Page ends with these paragraphs:

"Surely such a notable group of revealing books crowded with new material will be prized by future generations and first editions will be of increasing value as the years go by.

"The first copies of these books when printed will be set aside for the readers who place their orders in advance. If you are interested, fill out the following coupon and an early copy will be reserved for you, and notification sent when ready."

This advertisement inevitably raises two questions in the minds of the book-trade. First, will future collectors pay a premium for first editions of books in these fields? Second, if there is to be such interest, what reason is there to think it could not be reached thru the regular bookstore channels rather than direct from the publisher?

NOTICE

Extra copies of this issue of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, with its Index to the new books of the Fall Season, will be supplied at a nominal cost of 15 cents each. A copy might well be placed in the hands of every clerk on the floor.

Next week Rare Book Number.

Netherlands-America Foundation

EDWARD BOK, whose autobiography has been such a feature of the past year's bookselling, is now in Holland, where he is organizing the Netherlands-America Foundation. If this Foundation can be developed and can do as much to create a better understanding thru the production in this country of Dutch books in the same way that the Scandinavian-American Foundation has done it for books of Denmark, Norway and Sweden, this will be an important undertaking.

* In August, 1920, 310 new books, 80 new editions and 138 pamphlets were recorded, a total of 528.

INTELLIGENT and of inquiring mind, it seems, are the guests of the Hotel Pennsylvania, writes Christopher Morley in the New York Evening Post. For observe: "The House of Cobwebs," by George Gissing (a thoroly delightful collection of tales) is a hard book to find and little known to the general public. Yet, in the excellent library of said hotel there is a copy; and it has been borrowed twelve times by guests, which is good work. Many of our clients have scoured the town in attempts to get hold of this book: we suggest that Mr. Slater arrange a special reduced rate for any one who takes a room at the hotel overnight.

Leading Names in Contemporary American Literature

The Result of a Ballot Among the Booksellers

NEITHER the person who knows merely the accepted books of the past nor he who reads only among the new books can have the fully balanced view of literature. Those who read only among the current publications need to be urged to build up their background of knowledge in order that they may be the more competent to appreciate and judge of the living. Those who believe that all good writing ceased in some indefinite golden age just before the present, need to be told again that the golden age of literature is always just back of the present, and it was only by giving some attention to the current authors that the classics of the past were produced.

A book gets into its proper place by wide reading, general discussion, rereading and more discussion, and such methods as may increase the reading of the books of worthy living writers and increase discussion of their place and permanency not only give authors more impetus to write, but sharpen the critical acumen of the reader. No one can expect that a man can be fully judged by his contemporaries, but it is perhaps unnecessary that the lack of finality in judgment should prevent the placing of any judgment at all.

The PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY has asked from the booksellers a vote on whom they believe to be the most significant living American writers. The suggestion for this canvass came from a well-known London literary journal which a few months ago carried out such a canvass among its readers and published a list of what that vote found to be the forty leading writers in England. A vote among the booksellers over here is not a plebiscite in exactly the same field, but as no periodical going to the general public has attempted this recently, it seems worthy of interest.

A CONSENSUS OF OPINION

In some ways a vote from the booksellers has an interest above that attached to the opinions of the general reader. The bookseller is in touch with all kinds of taste and gives an opinion that is not only a personal one, but almost a consensus of opinion from his community. In replying to a request for the names of forty people who have added or are adding distinction to American letters, the bookseller naturally does not think wholly of the gross total sales, but to his best judgment estimates whether a lasting reputation is being built and whether the writer is really adding to American letters.

The ballots for this informal election to the American hall of literary fame were sent out to two hundred booksellers in greatly varying types of stores, general bookstores, well-known bookshops and book departments, in order to get a vote that would represent the principal types of book distributors in the country. As with many calls for information which periodicals send to their public, too large a percentage of people dislike to take time in supplying such information or feel doubtful about the value of their opinion. It is to be regretted, and it, of course, affects the value of this presentation, that fifty ballots are all that are in the total presented in this list. A few above this number had to be thrown out, owing to the fact that the character of the inquiry was misunderstood. Many included English authors, thinking that that was what was wanted. The method of estimating the vote was to give forty points every time an author was placed in the first position and one point less for each position below that. The list of forty is as follows:

AMERICAN AUTHOR LIST

- | | |
|-------------------------------|---------------------------|
| 1. Booth Tarkington | 22. Mary Roberts Ringhart |
| 2. Edith Wharton | 23. Irving Bacheller |
| 3. Joseph Hergesheimer | 24. Henry L. Mencken |
| 4. Henry Van Dyke | 25. Agnes Repplier |
| 5. Gertrude Atherton | 26. Eugene O'Neill |
| 6. Winston Churchill | 27. Irvin S. Cobb |
| 7. Amy Lowell | 28. Wm. Roscoe Thayer |
| 8. Edgar Lee Masters | 29. Frederick O'Brien |
| 9. James Branch Cabell | 30. Zane Grey |
| 10. Sinclair Lewis | 31. Woodrow Wilson |
| 11. Joseph Lincoln | 32. Stewart Edward White |
| 12. Owen Wister | 33. Kathleen Norris |
| 13. Robert Frost | 34. Gene Stratton Porter |
| 14. Theodore Dreiser | 35. Thomas Nelson Page |
| 15. Dorothy Canfield | 36. Alice Brown |
| 16. Edward Arlington Robinson | 37. Brander Matthews |
| 17. Christopher Morley | 38. Mary Watts |
| 18. Margaret Deland | 39. Carl Sandburg |
| 19. Zona Gale | 40. Kate Douglas Wiggin |
| 20. Willa S. Cather | |
| 21. Vachel Lindsay | |

It is quite obvious that there must be differences of opinion as to the order in which these should have fallen, but the forty names here listed show a remarkably interesting group. The list as a whole is heavily weighted toward fiction, as is probably natural, as the largest sales are in fiction, and other writers are not so easy for the bookseller to place. A few ballots were almost entirely of fiction, showing that the booksellers did not feel competent to place others from their experience. This was somewhat offset by the very high places given by many ballots to the American poets, a place which they undoubtedly deserve.

The list shows twenty-five novelists, from Booth Tarkington to Kate Douglas Wiggin. Booth Tarkington and Mrs. Wharton led the field by quite a large majority, and the others followed closely along in descending numerical results. Practically every ballot cast contained these two names. Other names that fell just outside the list and which many would miss are names of such established reputation as James Lane Allen, George W. Cable, Hamlin Garland, Ellen Glasgow and Mary E. Wilkins, and younger contributors such as Sherwood Anderson and Ernest Poole.

Six poets, certainly a strong list, are included, headed by Amy Lowell, Masters, Frost, Robinson, Lindsay and Sandburg. Among those that will be missed and that fell just below in numerical appreciation are Sara Teasdale, Edna St. Vincent Millay, Edwin Markham, Percy MacKaye. The historians are represented by William Roscoe Thayer and Woodrow Wilson, and it will probably be regretted by many that such names as Rhodes, McMaster and Beveridge could not fall within the number. Drama is represented by Eugene O'Neill, most appropriately, and perhaps there was no second in sight except Susan Glaspell. Frederick O'Brien, representing travel, fell happily within the list, while William Beebe fell just below the mark.

It seems unfortunate that American humor did not have any outstanding figure that should be recognized for his contribution to our literature, as we have always complimented ourselves on our production in this field. Of those who fell below the line in votes, the four following deserve mention: George Ade, F. P. Dunne, Don Marquis, Ring Lardner. Among the writers of miscellany and essays, Henry Van Dyke's position so near the top is a high compliment to his appreciation in the book-selling world. He is followed by Morley, Mencken, Repplier and Matthews. Samuel McChord Crothers came very near the mark, and such names as Woodberry, Santayana and Dewey got a deserved recognition. As one ballot said, "I know in voting for this that many of them will be dead enough within a few years, but, after all, so will I." It was with no false confidence in their ability to select immortals that many booksellers co-operated in giving this interesting ballot, but the general direction of the vote seems to pay high testimony to the discrimination of the American bookseller.

It is worth while to reprint at this same time the vote as it fell in England. This list has been much criticized, especially as to the order of those among the last thirty, but it will give opportunity to make comparisons. As was said by one correspondent, "I believe that the United States at present has little chance of making favorable comparisons with a first ten on an English list," but from then on we welcome comparison, and in some fields such as the younger poets the balance turns our way. Comparisons are, of course, unimportant, as English literature is all of one stock and belongs to us all. Such rivalry as it is natural to feel comes from the wish of any country to feel that its life is expressing itself thoroly in literature, and while we compare our product with that of England, Canada and Australia are stretching their wings to compare with ourselves, and with England and we all belong to the literature in whose history and land-marks all have common heritage.

An Early Printer Who Boasted

HENRY Stevens of Vermont wisely begins the preface of his "Catalog of My English Library" with "If you are troubled with a pride of accuracy, and would have it completely taken out of you, print a catalog." This is also true of books, and a curious case of immediate punishment for boasting of accuracy came to my hand the other day. This is a little 12mo printed by H. Alopecius (H. Wolf, the printer, using a Greek translation of his name) at Cologne in 1524. It is the Bohemian History by Aeneas Silvius (Pope Pius II). In the address of the printer to the reader reference is made to the great inaccuracy of the earlier edition and its "absence of orthography" ("nulla orthographia"). The printer also states he has used his best efforts and given a final survey of errata, nor fails to "crawl" slightly at the end when he begs the reader to judge any mistakes leniently. Unfortunately for his attack on his predecessor, the very first word of his "Address" is a misprint: "Ar" Lectorem for "Ad" Lectorem. Also his grammar fails him in the last sentence and he prints "you" for "we"; "curavis" being a vimus"; the very form of "curavis" being a solecism for "curvaistis"? The printer was safe in praising his edition on the title page for being the first with an index, and therefore useful to the scholar, and he is clever of a cross where the cross is mentioned, but modesty is the printer's best emblem and nothing is better than the old way of ending by "Deo Gratias."

THERE is a chance that W. L. George may make another trip to the United States next spring.

A Notable Increase in Book Dealers

IN the general attention that has been given in the past year or two to the increase in the number of dealers that handle books the efforts of the American News Company in its many branches are particularly interesting. This company determined a year ago that the time was ripe for a greater sale of books among their 37,000 active periodical accounts. When the situation was studied it was found that out of this list 12,000 sold books of one kind or another. These might be divided into three classes: (1) Dealers who sell books of a general character; (2) dealers selling popular copyrights, competitive lines and juveniles; (3) dealers selling paper-covered novels, joke books, comic cartoons, "World Almanacs," etc. Besides this, there are 25,000 other dealers who handle periodicals alone, but who supply excellent prospects for a propaganda for selling books.

All the branch agencies have been giving special attention to this problem, and the American News Trade Journal, the organ edited by Herbert Hungerford to reach out to these 37,000 dealers, has been laying special emphasis on books as a merchandise suitable to wider use by dealers. C. H. Ayers, the head of the Book Department, now estimates that 500 new book accounts have been added as the result of this special effort. Probably, as he says, some of the new dealers will fall by the way, but the larger proportion in the present market will find it a profitable addition.

RETAIL DISPLAY FIXTURE

A very important part of this campaign has been the supplying of proper facilities for display. The News Company has taken hold of the sale display fixtures such as will suit almost any shop, large or small, and many shops that had a few scattered items on their back shelf and were discouraged with books now count them an active staple, because those that are carried are well cared for in the racks, and a quick turnover is obtained.

This idea of supporting a campaign for more accounts by emphasis on the matter of proper display has, of course, been the idea back of the promotion work of Grosset & Dunlap in perfecting and selling at cost the Munger book rack. This rack has made bookselling a profit to many who had not thought it in their field, and the demand for them is increasing. Grosset & Dunlap report that a great many new accounts have been opened this year in the face of the general retail situation. The completeness with which this firm canvasses the country and the popular character of the books sold makes their sales efforts of fundamental importance to the whole trade.

Grosset & Dunlap report that their spring drive for more book outlets thru the drug trade has brought excellent results. These stores can keep books on sale on evenings and Sundays, which other stores cannot accomplish. Baker & Taylor Co. report that with them, also, a great number of new accounts have been the result of the year's work. This, according to their report, includes not only entirely new stores, but also new departments and people put into the business that have stores carrying other lines of merchandise.

McClurg's wholesale department points out that bookstore increases have been in the larger cities rather than in smaller places. That Chicago, for instance, has larger, better and more bookstores than ever before. Many of these new stores are specialists pushing certain lines.

The National Association of Book Publishers has made the encouragement of new book outlets an important feature of their work and numbers of people have called during the year for consultation and advice on opening bookshops. Information on bookshop budgets, locations, promotion, etc., has been much called for. And cautions, too, for those who had not requisite preparation or backing for the needs of retailing. The Association has just prepared a booklet on opening a book department intended to help those who are thinking of adding books to their business, or can be persuaded to do so.

NEW BOOK SHOPS

The English-Speaking World

GREAT BRITAIN has just published statistics of the 1921 census, the previous census being 1911. Dispatches from England also bring latest reports of the statistics on the other English-speaking dominions,* so that a new estimate can be made of the total English-speaking races. The Irish census was not taken last year, owing to the disturbances there, and India also has not been taken since 1911. With allowance, however, for these discrepancies, the totals reported are as follows:

POPULATION STATISTICS

Great Britain (England, Scotland, Wales)	42,767,530
Ireland (1911 census)	4,390,219
Adjacent Islands	299,704
Canada	8,835,000
South Africa—Europeans	1,521,635
Australia	5,426,008
New Zealand	1,218,270
India—Europeans (1911 census)	320,000
	64,778,366
United States (1920)	105,683,108
Total	170,461,474

It would seem that there is a total English-speaking population in these countries of 170,000,000, of which a little over 60% is in the United States.

That language is a bond of union of unescapable power has been shown in every century of history, and that English-speaking races will instinctively keep together because of better mutual understanding and better knowledge of each other's ideas and ideals is inevitable. It is also obvious to those who are interested in the distribution of print in any form, that the matter of language has a business as well as a sentimental aspect. While cotton goods, cutlery, machinery, raw materials, the things most largely reported in all the statistics of world trade, flow from port to port, regardless of language, and find their place in the business and life of each nation regardless of the tongue of those who handle it, books must find their demand among the people who can read them, and the question of language and of literacy is of fundamental importance to that trade.

With this in mind, the geographical distribution of those who use the English language becomes of significance to the publishing world, and the fact that over 60% of the English-speaking people are in the United States and must buy their books thru the American market is of important trade significance, and nearly 70% are on the North American continent.

In the matter of literacy, too, the population of this continent is not behind that of any other English-speaking nation, and with the present expressed determination to wipe out those sections of illiteracy shown by the war statistics the United States will become even more than in the past a wide open market for the sale of reading matter. Already in the field of educational books the amount of material used is increasing from year to year as various sections of the country increase their school year and raise their age limit for working children, and the increase in the demand for textbooks both in quantity and variety has remarkable possibilities.

While the United States has led the world in the popular application of the public library idea, there is full realization among the leaders of the library work that the possible use of the library has nowhere nearly reached its full development. According to recent statements, the American Library Association looks forward to a growth that will ultimately make the library reach out to 60,000,000 more of our population that have not yet been reached by the present facilities.

In the general purchase of books there are no statistics by which to show the book demands of different countries, and the United States has always been critical of itself as a book user. Whatever the facts might prove, if they could be gathered, there can be no doubt that the per capita purchase of books has been increasing in the last two or three years, and the optimism that pervades the retail book-trade in various parts of the country which has increased, even in the difficult year of 1921, indicates that there are good signs that progress is being made in increasing the number of those who habitually buy books.

The above new statistics give opportunity to point to contemporary tendencies, and in another ten years the United States should find itself not only the home of the greatest mass of English-speaking people but because of that preponderance by far the greatest distributors of books in the English language.

The Nation's Appetite for Fiction

By Herbert F. Jenkins

of Little, Brown & Company

[The third of a series of papers on "To-day's Tendencies in Book Publishing" delivered at the Convention of the American Library Association at Swampscott, June 25.]

FICTION has been termed the young person's spree and the maiden lady's solace. To the mentally active it serves as a sedative; to the lazy, a stimulant. Leaving aside the novels that one ought to read—and therefore seldom does—the great mass of fiction is a form of entertainment to while away one's spare hours—solitary, unsociable pleasure, to be sure, but generally absorbing, usually innocent, and sometimes leading to the desire for more serious literature.

But you cannot cram solid books down the throats of those who merely want a good story. Some years ago the Burlington Railroad placed on its limited trains libraries consisting of Dr. Eliot's celebrated "five foot shelf of books." These admirably selected classics were in so little demand by the tourists and traveling salesmen, during a period of two months, that there were only 35 calls from passengers for this variety of time-killing reading matter. It appears that "Arabian Nights" and "Fruits of Solitude" were the two most popular titles, each being borrowed five times. "Haven't you something by an up-to-date author?" the tired transcontinental traveler would ask of George, the colored porter, and George would be forced to admit that the library in his charge was made up almost exclusively of "dead ones."

At last the railroad officials decided upon a change and, as a result, Virgil's "Aeneid" and Pliny's "Letters" gave way to O. Henry's "Options" and Richard Harding Davis' "Gallagher," while other substituted titles included "Marjorie Daw," "Robinson Crusoe," "Vicar of Wakefield," "Treasure Island" and "Captains Courageous," so that the new library was not without literary distinction. The best sellers were not purchased, doubtless for the reason that they would need to be changed so often to keep up with the times, but there was an immediate increase in circulation.

FICTION AS ENTERTAINMENT

As a form of entertainment, the reading of fiction requires more mental effort than attending the motion pictures, affords less fresh air than motoring, and is not so noisy as the talking machine.

Aside from the few in nearly every sizable town who endeavor to read the best of the new novels as they appear—most readers confine their fiction to their favorite authors or to the type of story they like best. To many, fiction reading is a matter of opportunity—opportunity to find the time to read after books have been made easily accessible; to others it is a constant effort to keep up with the most notable or notorious novels of the day.

Yet with all the competition of the movies, the phonograph and the fliver, there are enough romantic stenographers, leisurely housewives and tired business men to encourage the writing and publishing of a large annual crop of novels. This crop varies somewhat in size and character from year to year, but there is unmistakably a steadily growing market for the product of the imaginative pen, and I contend that the average quality of the crop shows gradual improvement.

CURRENT MAGAZINE FICTION

From the earliest days the magazines printed stories, but never before the present decade have there been so many weekly and monthly periodicals printing so large a proportion of fiction. The American magazines not only publish the best short stories written, but there are novels published today, as serials, that would have been considered too highbrow for popular magazine readers a score of years ago. Indeed I recall the time when the editors of more than one of our very best monthlies seriously considered the advisability of discontinuing the serial. To-day it is the great circulation builder and you will find three of these "continued in our next" instalments in many general magazines, selling for 25 to 35 cents a copy.

Periodicals established primarily to disseminate varied information to women now devote the most attention to their fiction features. Edith Wharton's novel, "The Age of Innocence," a best seller which won the Columbia University prize of $1,000 as the best American novel of 1920, appeared serially in a woman's magazine, last year, prior to book publication, thus indicating the high character of the fiction that is provided for those who were formerly supposed to be most concerned with the changing styles of feminine apparel.

No longer is the typical magazine serial a thing apart—with its carefully constructed "curtains" at the end of each instalment, to lure the reader to purchase the next issue in order to ascertain whether or not the beautiful heroine was finally rescued from the clutches of the dashing villain.

Novels by John Galsworthy, Arnold Bennett, H. G. Wells, Blasco Ibáñez, and Joseph Hergesheimer, written primarily for book publication, may now be first read in popular periodicals.

Newspapers which a score of years ago found no room for book calibre fiction now reprint from day to day instalments of creditable novels, along with comic strips, movie chat and advice to the lovelorn.

The fiction reading public is so vast that it may be divided into three groups, altho these groups often overlap.

First, those who read the fiction in the magazine, where so many of the favorite novels first appear; secondly, readers who patronize public and circulating libraries or sometimes buy novels; while a third reading of the same novel is frequently provided by newspapers purchasing second serial rights.

With the widening market for the novel there has been afforded a better opportunity for the newer author to dispose of his literary wares. If the promising novice with a 60,000-word story cannot find a publisher among a dozen magazines or a similar number of book publishers, his product is generally hopeless.

THE WAR AS AN IMPETUS

It is not necessary for one to tell librarians of the stimulated demand for fiction which followed our entrance into the World War. Not all of the boys who perhaps read their first cloth-bound novel in camp, hospital or on transport have forsaken this form of recreation now that they have returned to civilian life.

It was for the most part good, wholesome fiction they wanted—Zane Grey, Conan Doyle, Jack London, Rex Beach and E. Phillips Oppenheim—all absorbing stories of action that furnished a thrill of a kind different from their own experiences in the service.

A soldier in France who had been over the top a half dozen times asked the Y. M. C. A. worker for something exciting to read and was delighted with a western story in which a two-gun cowboy wearing chaps shoots up the town, while we who were at home thought that Empey's "Over the Top" contained more thrills from real life than we had ever found in any novel.

Let us consider on what the nation's appetite for fiction feeds.

Twenty to twenty-five years ago the best sellers were "Quo Vadis," Beside the Bonnie Briar Bush," "David Harum," "Eben Holden," "When Knighthood Was in Flower," "To Have and to Hold," "Janice Meredith," and "Richard Carvel." The popularity of the historical romance and the "by-gosh" novel has long since departed—with no signs of returning. A few authors like Jeffery Farnol supply "costume" stories to a larger number of enthusiastic readers, but their sales fail to approach the "Richard Carvel" record.

During the period that followed, the reading masses for the most part remained loyal to Winston Churchill, who, however, soon wrote on more timely themes; it adopted for a brief space of time Alice Hegan Rice of the "Cabbage Patch" fame, and also Florence Barclay, the author of "The Rosary"; it obtained a taste of good western fiction in "The Virginian" and has been reading cowboy stories ever since.

This more recent period marked the advent of Harold Bell Wright and Gene Stratton Porter, the twin stars of the popular fiction firmament, the former with a total sale of 7,250,000 up to the first of the year, and the latter with a record of 8,132,432 up to date. Both are still writing to vast audiences. This was the period of the greatest popularity of the late Eleanor H. Porter, whose two Pollyanna books, with a combined sale of 753,000, established the Pollyanna school of fiction. I have mentioned the name of Zane Grey, king of best sellers of 1920, with his million copies annually, or, as his publishers express it, the American public apparently spent some $1,500,000 for his books last year. There is O. Henry, who did not live to witness the popularity of his volumes of stories,—now past the 4,500,000 mark. The increasing vogue of Joseph C. Lincoln's Cape Cod stories has resulted in a demand for approximately 2,500,000. The American sales alone of E. Phillips Oppenheim exceed 2,000,000; while Mary Roberts Rinehart is in the 300,000 a year class. Then there's Ethel M. Dell, James Oliver Curwood, Kathleen Norris, and many others whose total sales reach 100,000 or more per annum.

If you lament because your patrons demand Ethel M. Dell or the Tarzan books, be heartened by the fact that Kipling sold to the extent of 2,000,000 volumes last year; that for the last four years the sales of Mark Twain's works aggregated 750,000 copies per year, while the new Conrad novels now appear among the best sellers. Even the versatile and intellectual H. G. Wells once reached the multitude with "Mr. Britling," as the figures of 245,000 attest, while more surprising is the statement that over 750,000 copies of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" have been sold in English translation.

The popular success of the recent group of novels dealing with real American small town life is considered significant by many, and indeed the sale to date of 266,000 copies of "Main Street" is a remarkable achievement. I should like to believe that such sincere, veracious portrayals of our everyday life, written by literary artists like Sinclair Lewis, will continue to attract. It would be indeed gratifying, but it would be expecting too much.

BOOKS WITH A PERSISTENT DEMAND

The inevitable demand for the novel of plot and incident, and the romance of love and adventure, will persist as long as books are read: and there will always be a large following for a semi-religious novel or a love story, sugar-coated with moral purpose.

What most readers want when they select a novel is to get out of themselves, to be transported into an almost fairy world, if necessary, or to revel in sentiment that they fail to find in their prosaic lives.

The fault of some of the masters of contemporary fiction, whose books are so cordially endorsed by the critics, is that while they please the few they lack the inexpressible touch of romance or human interest to attract the many. The average man finds them dull; they are over his head. With all their artistic skill, they lack the spark of genius that gave Dickens, Scott and Dumas a universal appeal.

You can't popularize fiction above the understanding of the ordinary fiction reader. As an instance of this, there is De Morgan's "Joseph Vance"—which stood at the head of a list of the best twenty-five books suitable for a private library—chosen by the vote of the readers of the Springfield City Library Association several years ago. An attempt was made to extend the number of readers of the De Morgan novels by reprinting them in the well-known popular edition form, at that time selling for 50 cents. The venture was a failure. There was no market for a cheap edition of these novels of rare literary merit; those who were attracted to De Morgan read him in the high-priced editions.

Until the American literary taste is sufficiently educated to enable the run of fiction readers really to enjoy great qualities of style, subtle psychology and artistic endings, the popular authors will continue to furnish the entertainment. It is no inconsiderable achievement to win widespread appreciation. Rather than depreciate the authors who acquire popularity I would lament that the intellectuals so seldom secure a hold on the larger fiction reading public.

New Dutch Book Headquarters

COOPERATIVE methods in book handling, which are so common in Europe, are well illustrated in the fine new equipment that the Hollanders have at their headquarters in Amsterdam. The Dutch Clearing House is owned by the Dutch booksellers, who are publishers and retailers combined. The building is self-supporting, and offices are rented out to people in the book-trade. All people who use the Clearing House have to be members of the Association, and nobody can become a member unless he is in good standing in the trade, not in the matter of credit, on which they do not pass, but in the general standard of the conduct of his business.

By having a central point for all orders to be gathered, there is a vast amount of motion saved, which brings an ideal service to the retailer and saves a great deal of expense to the publisher. It gives the whole country a service that makes for few wasted motions and few lost orders, and supplies a headquarters where information with regard to Dutch books can be had by people in other countries who would not be familiar with all the separate names of the Dutch publishers. A member of the American book-trade who is intimately acquainted with all the book handling methods of the Continent believes that this clearing house in its present form is an ideal organization that has not been surpassed in any country.

HOME OF THE DUTCH CLEARING HOUSE

How to Reach New Readers

IN making a study of the channels of book distribution and methods of reaching the non-book reader, a subject as much to the front in public library circles as in the book trade, Carl H. Milam, Secretary of the American Library Association, asked for detailed comments on this problem from a number of people in very varied lines of work and in different parts of the country. Among the people approached for comment on this subject was T. R. Rutland, a professor of English literature at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute at Auburn, Alabama.

Mr. Rutland's comments, coming as they do from a point of view outside of the circles where book distribution is usually under discussion, seem to carry so much of stimulating suggestion and to offer such interesting comment on the bookstore and library situation that the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY has asked permission to print his letter.

The fact that the Year Round Bookselling Committee has suggested that special attention be given this fall to the relations of the bookstore to its entire community gives these comments special value.

DEAR MR. MILAM:

In reply to your letter asking for comment on the problem of reaching the non-book reader, I beg to submit the following suggestions:

1. Cheaper books.
2. Resuscitation of bookstores. It is now impossible to get books of all kinds without writing to centers like Chicago and New York. Will such resuscitation be possible in library towns?
3. Encouragement of rental collections in bookstores.
4. Inauguration of some plan by which book stores could exchange books after holding them for sale for two months or more for other books for which there may be sale. Bookstores do not want to take any chances now that there is money in other things.
5. Encouragement of the use of books as prizes in schools, in card clubs, etc. The bookstore sells cards. A little propaganda will sell many books to card club hostesses.
6. More attractive reviewing of books in daily papers everywhere. If by some magic, we could establish a real book column in every paper to be filled by a really interested booklover, the shy browser might be lassoed.
7. Wide distribution of study and reading lists, advertisements such as those used by Chautauquas everywhere.
8. Co-operation with various educational agencies, such as state departments of education, service bureaus and correspondence departments in colleges, women's clubs, Boy Scouts, etc. By publishing lists of suitable reading and lists of books for study programs, conservative circularization thru these agencies, as well as libraries, is possible.
9. Studying the plans of the Drama League and co-operating with it.

10. Distribution of lists of books for business men thru Rotary and Kiwanis clubs. Local members of these clubs can offer a book once in a while as an attendance prize. Clubs might be encouraged to make collections of business books for use of members and might get the collection housed at the library.

If these fellows could be made to see that a library can be useful to the business man as well as to the leisurely meanderer among pleasant stories, books would be more popular.

11. Better use of technical clubs and literary society organizations in colleges, "Y's," etc.

12. Book advertisements on the moving picture screen. Make them pull like those ads that make public speakers out of "boobs."

13. Advertisements in System and other business magazines. The Saturday Evening Post is not a bad medium.

14. Book Bargain Days.

15. Magazine owners use the attraction of books to get or hold subscribers. Will the thing not work the other way also? Some co-operative scheme between booksellers and magazine owners might be profitable for both. See the New Republic.

16. Subscription libraries.

17. Discouraging the book agent.

The foregoing suggestions have been made mainly from the point of view of the bookseller. The establishment of county libraries with book wagons and travelling libraries ought to wake up things in the country. Both county librarians and city librarians must realize and bring their communities to realize that the library is a business asset and will educate boys and girls in the practical activities of the business world as well as give them polish and tickle their emotions. The hard-headed business man who does not know books, sets no business value on them. To him they are for people who have time to waste. He has not come in most cases to realize that the right book will increase his business success.

The personal contact of the librarian or library staff with the business man in his office or store is the best means of interesting him. There are some substitutes, like personal letters, but they do not work as well.

We must see that boys and girls learn the value of the library to the business world before they leave school. The proper cooperation of the public library and the public school has not been studied sufficiently.

The booksellers cannot do better than join hands with librarians and others in building libraries everywhere. Libraries increase the sale of books rather than decrease it. Additional readers mean more book sales. In all likelihood a study of the situation will show that the purchasers of books are patrons of libraries.

Yours sincerely,

(Signed) J. R. RUTLAND

Why the Common People Do Not Buy More Books

“FOR nearly a year,” says the editor of the American News Trade Journal, “I have been earnestly seeking the solution to the question—‘Why is there such a vast difference between the amount of money spent by the American public for periodicals and the amount spent for books?’ The motive behind this investigation was a firm conviction that the channels of book distribution ought to be greatly increased—that book buying should be made as convenient as periodical buying. Certainly there must be some good reason why there are more than forty thousand periodical sellers in the United States, but only a few thousand booksellers.

“Book people everywhere bewail the fact that so few people buy books. No one knows the exact figures, but everyone does know that very few people buy and read books, whereas almost everybody buys periodicals, newspapers, or magazines. So the smallness of the amount of book buying done cannot be blamed on the claim that we are an ignorant and non-reading class of people. We must go farther if we are to find the real cause of the difficulty.

“During the course of this investigation I read about a thousand novels. My lowbrow opinion is that about one hundred of these books deserved publication, and that the remaining 90 per cent. were valueless. The present trend in the book business is to publish books for what might be termed the highbrow literary cult, and very distinctly against publishing books for the common people—the big majority. When a publisher does put forth a book for the common people, he is extremely apologetic about it, and sometimes promises the critics not to let it happen again. At the Atlantic City convention of the Booksellers’ Association there was very strongly in evidence a tendency to sneer at the mention of such names as Zane Grey, Joe Lincoln, Gene Stratton-Porter, and Harold Bell Wright, despite the well known fact that the mere announcement of a new book by one of these authors means an immediate immense sale.

“Anything like universal book discussion has become a remote hope, because the wholesome, simple tastes of the great majority of potential book readers have been laughed to scorn by the professional and self-constituted book critics. Most people are extremely sensitive on the subject of their book tastes, and the expression of contempt by those whom they imagine better fitted to judge books discourages them and turns them aside from the very course which it would be to the profit of the book publishers to assist them to follow.

“Magazines, being compelled to sell themselves over and over every month, are obliged to maintain a high standard as to the quality of their contents. But there seems to be a fallacious theory abroad among book publishers that it is as profitable to print bad or indifferent books as good books. There is also an unfortunate blindness to the trend of the times, and a failure to keep in close touch with the main body of the reading public. This blindness is apparent in the oft-repeated statement by publishers that they ‘are publishing what the public wants.’ If they were doing that they would not have the complaint to make that the public are not buying books.

“While I do not claim that the results of my investigation are in all ways conclusive, one point has been very definitely driven home to me: The big field for bookselling has been among the so-called common people instead of among the ‘literary few’; and this great mass of potential book buyers, now restricted mainly to periodical reading, want clean, wholesome books when they are put before them.”

“The Literary Few” and the Common People

WE reprint with a good deal of interest in the columns above the article on “Why the Common People Do Not Buy More Books,” written by Herbert Hungerford, editor of the American News Trade Journal, who is in a position to watch the demands from thousands of sources, and who is closely in touch with the new and successful effort that the American News Company has been making to connect the book business up thoroly with the wider distribution that periodicals enjoy. His conclusion that the big field for bookselling lies among the so called common people instead of among the “literary few,” is probably sound, altho those who are in touch with this later circle are as little satisfied as other dealers with the totals reached.

It is probably true that those who are discussing and like to discuss what is sometimes called “serious” literature show great signs of impatience when figures are shown to prove the great sales of less carefully wrought fiction. At the same time those in the book-trade realize that there must always be this variety in reading, and tolerance on both sides is necessary. Those who scoff at the reading habits of the general public need to be reminded that Mark Twain reached his first great popularity in sales that were made thru house-to-house canvass among the highways and byways of the country, and this before he had received his degree at Oxford or had been mentioned in any literary courses in the colleges; that O. Henry was the most popular of writers in the Sunday supplements before he was mentioned in the textbooks on American literature; that Jack London, who is given a high place among recent writers, was as quickly read by the common people as by anybody else. The literary taste of the general public is therefore not to be lightly brushed aside as of little consequence. In the same issue of the American News Trade Journal that carried this editorial, we find that the News Company's agencies show "The Age of Innocence" and "Alice Adams" as the two best sellers in fiction, and the new Bernard Shaw ranking second in the non-fiction group. Surely such a listing does not point to any marked difference between the reading taste of one class and another.

Authors who break out into a new field or new technique cannot be surprised if their work fails of instant recognition any more than can painters or sculptors, and the sharp flings that are launched when such recognition fails to come promptly are more in petulance than in good reason. An author who is now in high favor among all types of readers chided the booksellers in a public speech because they failed to recognize his first book, reminded them that anyone would now be glad to pay fifteen dollars for a copy, if found. A re-reading of that first book would convince many that there was more promise than fulfillment there, and that a literary artist who came into his own with a rush by his third book need not be too caustic as to the failure of the public to appreciate fine work.

If the critics among what our article calls "the literary few" sometimes fail to appreciate the point of view of the many, those who are interested particularly in the progress of the half-million-volume sellers are sometimes equally impatient and caustic about the talk of the "literary few." In matters of taste there must be leadership and sharp discussion. The blind following of numerical records of what the people read last month leads nowhere. The movie world is rather floundering today because some of the old ideas are running out, even tho it holds millions entranced, and it is the new ideas that may come from small experiment and sharp criticism that will make that field again progress. The big Broadway play producers sneered their loudest at all efforts of little theaters until they were finally glad to borrow from the experiments in scenery and production methods and until they saw these experiments coming into the large theaters for long and successful runs.

A reader who enjoys a certain popular type of light fiction and finds other types heavy reading feels very confident that anyone who turns to the other is doing it with a pose, feels sure that if he followed his own real enjoyment he would find better book food elsewhere. The person who first hears a symphony and cannot find where the melody lies is convinced that everybody who is honest would rather hear "Home Sweet Home" played well. It is no criticism of "Home Sweet Home" to say that there is a difference.

Surely the use of print does not belong to any one group. It is the means of communication between groups of a like interest and between one group and another, and a broader tolerance among "the literary few" for the tastes of the great mass, and a clearer understanding among the great mass of what "the literary few" are talking about would be a good platform for procedure. At the same time, we do not want too much peace—let those whose opinions do not lie in the way of tolerance speak out. Only by expressions of this kind will we get progress.

A Week's Gleanings of Book-trade News

H. G. Wells has written a new novel, entitled "The Secret Places of the Heart."

PHYLLIS BOTTOME's new novel, "The Crystal Heart," is promised by the Century Co. for September 30th.

LOUIS DODGE has added another title to the attractive juveniles under his name, published by Scribner. The new one, "Everychild," has quaint little illustrations in color done by Blanche Fisher Laite.

It would be difficult to find a better subject for dramatic biography than Eleutherios Venizelos, the maker of modern Greece. The story of his life and work is presented to the public in a new Doran volume, published last week. S. B. Chester is the author.

ALL who in seasons past have loved the antics of the Tony Sarg marionettes will want "The Tony Sarg Marionette Book" which B. W. Huebsch is announcing as a Christmas gift book.

"NIELS LYHNE" to be published by Doubleday, Page & Co. on September 28th is the book which Ibsen called the greatest novel of the nineteenth century. It is one of the two novels upon which the fame of the great Scandinavian writer, Jens Peter Jacobsen, rests—both of them written during the eight years of suffering that ultimately brought his death at the early age of thirty-seven.

"IN PAWN," the first full-fledged novel by Ellis Parker Butler, author of that famous classic, "Pigs Is Pigs," has just come from Houghton Mifflin Co. It is a comedy of small town life.

SOMEONE started the rumor that America was weary of English lecturers. No such thing! Another group is preparing to come over the ocean soon—among them J. D. Beresford, whose "Revolution" has been so well received, and Michael Sadler, the young author of "Privilege," both published by Putnam's.

FOUR HUNDRED colleges and schools and 36,619 students actively engaged in play-production were unearthed by a recent questionnaire sent out by The Theatre. It is to meet their needs that Henry Holt & Co. are to issue on October 5th Clarence Stratton's "Producing in Little Theatres." Dr. Stratton has both written for and produced plays in little theatres, and shows how to stage and costume them. He also includes over sixty striking pictures, an annotated list of 200 suitable plays and a full index.

THE play "Dulcy" will be published in book form by Putnam's, probably in November.

JEFFERY FARNOL's eagerly awaited sequel to his last year's sea story, "Black Bartlemy's Treasure," will be published by Little, Brown & Co. October 8 under the title of "Martin Conisby's Vengeance."

EIGHT additions to the Modern Library series are announced for fall publication by Boni & Liveright. Included are Walt Whitman's "Poems," with an introduction by Carl Sandburg, and Anatole France's "At the Sign of the Reine I edaueque," with an introduction by James Branch Cabell.

GROSSET & DUNLAP have added one of the volumes of James W. Schultz, "Lone Bull's Mistake," to the Boy Scout library. This author, whose books have been coming out each year from Houghton Mifflin, has found approval as among the best of Indian story writers.

PROFESSOR JOHN M. MANLY, head of department of English at the University of Chicago, and John A. Powell, of the Holtzer-Cabot Electric Company, have collaborated in writing a series of books for business men which Frederick J. Drake & Co. are issuing as a series called Better Business Books. Three titles have just been published: "Better Business Letters," "Better Advertising," and "Better Business English."

THE Whistler Journal, by Elizabeth R. and Joseph Pennell, to be published this fall by the J. B. Lippincott Company, will contain unpublished documents in the Whistler vs. Ruskin trial, including Whistler's and Ruskin's proofs, with other comments, and Burns Jones' estimate of Whistler's art. The papers themselves have been added to the Whistler Collection in the Library of Congress.

A NEW edition of Boswell's "Life of Johnson" and "Tour in the Hebrides" will be published in the autumn by Doubleday, Page & Co. It has been projected by Mr. Gabriel Wells, the antiquarian bookseller. The work, which will be in ten large octavo volumes, will contain a general introduction by Professor Osgood of Princeton, and there will be ten separate introductions, one to each volume.

Now that Fannie Hurst's play, "Back Pay" is launched upon Broadway, and her first novel, "Star Dust," is going merrily along, she has returned to what she definitely considers her chef d'œuvre, the short story. The one upon which she is now working will complete the new collection to be published by the Harpers. This is the fifth volume of Miss Hurst's short stories.

In the Field of the Retailer

Half-Dollar for Service

A JOINT Congressional Commission of Agricultural Inquiry has been studying the problems of distribution and consumption to see whether too much of the price paid by consumers for goods and commodities is represented by distribution expense. Their estimate that 9 cents of the dollar goes to service is an interesting figure to compare with the cost in specific lines of business, such as in the book field. They divide the customer's dollar into three parts, and on the broad estimate, give 37 cents to production costs, 49 cents for the service of distribution, producer's, jobber's and retailer's services, and 14 cents to profit. In the book field there would probably be a larger item in the production figure and a smaller one for the service.

"The consumer blames the middlemen for the extent and cost of this service, such as packing, transportation, grading, insurance, selling, advertising, display, rent, wages, overhead, but the middleman says that he is only giving the consumer what the consumer wants when he wants it," says Representative Sidney Anderson, chairman of the Commission. "The public demands too much service and compels the merchant to increase his price.

"Goods are sold, not so much by offering a price as by offering service, convenience, dependability, reputation, credit. The consumer pays all of this. It is like the invisible tax, easy to pay because it is not apparently camouflaged in the price.

"Reduction of service costs can come only thru a better understanding of the problem by both middleman and consumer, thru better organization of the business of distribution by the middleman, and by the organization of his requirements by the consumer. The science of distribution, of finding markets, of relating outputs to market, are all in their infancy. We know very little of many factors that influence consumption, such as unemployment, wages, and the consumer psychology. The same genius of organization that has been applied to production must be applied to distribution.

THAT booksellers are becoming more and more interested in the cause of the book in general, as well as in their own announcements of titles, is interestingly shown in a fall catalog that comes to hand from Dodd, Mead & Co. The second page has the following argument to the non-book user:

Let's say you have a certain small amount of money to spare, to spend as you will on pleasure. How can you use it most wisely?

A box of sweets? Flowers? Theater tickets?

Any of these will bring you pleasure. But remember, keen as your enjoyment will be, it cannot last.

For sweets vanish quickly; flowers must fade, and once the lights are dimmed your few hours of make-believe are only a memory.

But books—

A good book will give you pleasure while you are reading it—and not only pleasure but instruction—inspiration—dreams.

And if the book is really good you will go back to it in after months—in after years—finding new meanings, new ideas.

Not you alone, but your family, your friends, can enjoy a book.

A transient pleasure—or a lasting one—whichever? Figure it Out.

This is worth the attention of every retail salesman.

The same catalog has the announcement of a book on "Why We Should Read" by S. P. B. Mais, who has made a great reputation in England for his ability to arouse enthusiasm for reading among the general public and also of "Books and Habits," edited from the writings of Lafcadio Hearn by Prof. John Erskine, a volume that should interest the bookseller for his own reading as well as for sale.

All Advertising is Literature

Which moves me most I can't be sure,

Of these two fostered fads—

The ads I read in literature,

Or literature in ads.

An ad says: "Club Rate Burial Plan

Is now the Funeral Craze"—

Forthwith I hie me home to scan

Bryant's "Melancholy Days."

I con the sonnets poets sing

Of love now past recall,—

And out I go and buy a ring

To give my girl withal.

I read an ad that offers store

Of gold in mining scheme,—

I turn to Grimm's old fairy lore,

And lay me down to dream!

I think on Herrick's precious Prue,

The Dainties she could make!—

Eftsoons I haste to buy me two

Sweet junkets and a cake.

I read a tale by E. A. Poe,

With mystery metaphored,—

And straightaway I needs must go

And buy a Ouija Board!

And so, I'm puzzled on the whole,

By copy hook and crook,

For Roland Hall can touch my soul,

And Burns my pocketbook!

The Thomas Bailey Aldrich Bookcase

An active and attractive feature of this year's Children's Book Week is to be the promotion of personal libraries for children thru publicity given by the Thomas Bailey Aldrich bookcase. The bookcase is a reproduction of the one mentioned in "The Story of a Bad Boy" and the original hangs in the Aldrich Memorial House at Portsmouth, N. H. Besides distribution on 20,000 circulars with the working drawings of the bookcase as kindly provided by Mrs. Aldrich, the Book Week Committee has arranged with the C. J. Lundstrom Mfg. Co. of Little Falls, N. Y., well known makers of sectional cases, to make the Aldrich case for the general market. These are beautifully finished in mahogany stain and shipped flat with holes bored and screws enclosed at $3.25 each. The case hangs from silk cord which is attached.

The case which has been photographed above was filled out as a library for a boy of twelve by Mrs. Louise Pleasanton, head of the Children's Department at Brentano's, New York.

The fascination of having a personal library is always very strong with children and has been too infrequently provided for. When a child's growing library has to rely for its shelving on a hit-or-miss place in the family bookcase or on the dark shelves of the bedroom, the pull of personal possession is weakened and the enjoyment needlessly decreased.

A book collection of about 35 to 40 books hung handily in the boys' or girls' own room is a prized possession indeed and the bookseller who has among the families he serves a goodly number of these growing libraries is in a way to have a steady business while admirably serving his community. Boy and girl libraries grow into future home libraries and boy and girl collectors into the broader visioned citizens of their town.

That this type of wall bookcase is not solely a boy's fancy is shown by a photograph that appeared in "A Salem Shipmaster" published by The Four Seas Co. In this book is a photograph of the beautiful old-fashioned bedroom of Betsy Pierce, sister-in-law of Capt. Nichols, and on the wall is just such a bookcase as that of the Aldrich room, of slightly different contour but of the same general appearance. The Pierce home in Salem is one of the masterpieces of McIntyre, the famous Salem architect.

English Book-Trade News

THE discussion which has appeared in the Literary Review on the place of special subscription editions in the publishing of current books gives added interest to an announcement coming from England of new publications in this field. On the fall announcements of one English publisher, T. Werner Laurie, the new book of memoirs by William Butler Yeats, called "The Trembling of the Veil," is announced in a limited edition of 1000 copies at £2 2s. The publisher announces that the style is similar to recent editions of George Moore and will contain the full bibliography of Mr. Yeats. John Freeman's "A Portrait of George Moore in a Study of His Work" is published in a limited edition uniform with the recent George Moore books, each copy numbered and signed by the author, 42s. This book will also be in the library edition at 16s. A Welch play called "The Cauldron of Annwn" by Thomas Evelyn Ellis is printed in an edition limited to 250 copies, and the selection of "Nine Tales from Balzac's Stories" newly done in English by Robert Crawford is printed in an edition numbered, limited and signed by the translator, at £2 2s. The stories selected are "The Venial Sin" and others that are sometimes omitted from English translation.

Someone has discovered that this year is the centenary of the birth of the compiler of the famous British Hymns Ancient and Modern. For fifty years or so before the war that remarkable anthology sold at the rate of 800,000 copies a year. It is doubtful whether any other work, either devotional or secular, excepting the Bible, has ever approached that astonishing record.

If the secret documents relating to Lord Kitchener are deposited in the British Museum for 60 years, as is proposed by Lord Esher, they will be locked up in a special cupboard with Earl Haig's private papers relating to the war.

About two years ago Lord Haig's personal notes and documents, which must be of immense national and historical interest, were given into the charge of the Trustees of the British Museum with instructions that they were not to be opened until 1940.

Altho he has received many tempting offers, the Field-Marshal has refused to write a book on the war, and he has always maintained great reticence about the secret history of the campaign in France, of which he must know so much.

It is not an infrequent occurrence for private documents to be deposited in the museum for a stated number of years, but there are not many instances of papers of military interest being so dealt with.

A number of valuable literary manuscripts have been deposited here, among them a number of private papers relating to Lord Byron.

Saving on Textbooks

THE examination into the city administration of New York by a committee appointed by the State Legislature has brought to the newspaper columns a vast amount of details about city affairs. In the newspapers of last week Senator Meyer, who conducted the inquiry, cross-examined the Superintendent of Schools, Mr. Prall, with regard to the affairs of the Board of Education. Senator Meyer suggested that money could be saved if the city took over the manufacture and printing of certain textbooks. Mr. Prall explained that it was his estimate, without consulting the officials or testing the figures, that the city expended from $700,000 to $800,000 on textbooks and that the city would be able to save $300,000 to $400,000 by publishing its own books.

If New York City spends $800,000 for 900,000 school children, the expense is modest enough compared to that which would be expected. When the number and variety of books used in the average school year, from geographies to spelling books, is considered, the figure seems small. That about 40 per cent of this could be saved by the city's manufacturing its own school-books is a reappearance of an old fallacy that has been disproven again and again by state experiment. This fallacy is usually based on an estimate as to what it would cost for paper, printing and binding of the books already in use. The critics usually fail to consider that the city would be under expenses for editorial preparation, for the making of plates, gathering of illustrations, for overhead expense such as is needed in preparing textbooks to compare with the best that are made, and for the executive heads who could see that these were carried thru in the best possible way, that is, by forgetting expenses that are inescapable, it can be proven that money can be saved.

If the other figures being brought out with this inquiry are as pertinent as this, the value of the investigation is small, indeed.

Roosevelt Literature

IN response to the widespread desire for a "living memorial" to Theodore Roosevelt, the Roosevelt Memorial Association has established the Bureau of Roosevelt Research and information. The object of this bureau is to gather all available biographical data concerning Colonel Roosevelt, and by means of publications and lectures to spread the knowledge of his character and career. Plans for a definitive edition of Mr. Roosevelt's works are well advanced. Houghton Mifflin Co. publishers for the association, announce the first two of their volumes for this fall. They are "Roosevelt in the Bad Lands" by Hermann Hagedorn, and "Roosevelt in the Kansas City Star." The latter volume is a series of his editorials written during the war.

An Uncorrected Galley

NOTHING TO BRAG ABOUT

"I'm afraid I can't use this kind of stuff," said the publisher loftily as he handed back the manuscript. "All right! You needn't be so condescending about it!" retorted the author. "You're not the only one who's refused that story, you know!"—Stray Stories.

A SUBTLE DISTINCTION

The following dialog occurred in a recent trial: "Are you a versifier, or should I call you a poet?" asked the lawyer. "I suppose you had better call me a versifier," modestly replied Mr. Clawson, "I publish my own poems."

EVERY LIT'RY MOVEMENT

Allow us to apprise you in our most impressive tone

That every lit'ry movement has a meaning all its own.

That lit'ry gents and ladies lend tobasco to a tome

By walking, riding, going, coming, touring, staying home;

By losing, finding, wedding, parting, lamentation, laughter,

We make the human interest that the "publiture" is after.

We writing folk are quiet folk that hate a fuss or stir:

Our movements are for shelf display, to please our publisher.

Left to ourselves we'd lie as low as Jonah in the whale;

Keith Preston in Chicago Daily News.

Why the Novels?

"I T must always be remembered," writes Edward Shanks in The London Mercury, "that the cascade of prose fiction which flows spring and autumn from the presses is not invariably due to the unaided working of the time-spirit in the minds of authors. The modern public is willing to devour novels: it is not willing to devour much else; it is supplied with novels. The individual drops in the flood are not often created by a quite spontaneous impulse in the writer, even when he is a serious and conscientious artist. It is said that nowadays the author who has written even a very promising first novel will find some difficulty in getting it published. It is certain that the author of any other kind of first book is in a far worse position. Therefore the man with ideas to express, equally with the man who has a career to make, is led to the novel—because the novel is undoubtedly more in demand than any other form of literature.

Moreover, sordid as the thought may seem, it means money. The writer of verses, if he has a reputation and can find a publisher and has a little luck besides, may earn enough by the publication of his biennial volume to keep him in cigarettes for one out of the two years. The number of men under fifty who have earned enough by a collection of poems to buy a cottage could be counted on the fingers of one hand. Some writers (not many) do actually live on the proceeds of their novels. Others who, if left to themselves, would never attempt the form of prose fiction driven to do so in the hope, if not of making their fortunes, then at least of augmenting their incomes. It is, apart from periodical journalism the most serious and probable way of entering literature as a profession; and, whether we like it or not, literature is a profession and most of our good writers are as they always have been, professional writers. Let us add to these considerations the fact that there are many clever men who can, and successfully do, practise the writing of stories purely as a trade. All these points are, no doubt, sordid enough, but they are not irrelevant. They exercise a far-reaching influence on literature in general and the novel in particular; and they immensely complicate the material with which a critic has to deal when he wishes to discover what the novel is at present and whither it is going."

E. H. M. Cox, partner of the firm of Leslie Chaundy and Co., of London, is to visit the United States and Canada in October and November. The firm are dealers in rare books, especially first editions of contemporary authors and Mr. Cox is to bring a representative collection in this field to show to their American customers. Mail can be sent care of American Express Co., 118 West 39th St., New York City.

Obituary Notes

HENRY AUSTIN DOBSON, poet and man of letters, died on September 1st, at Ealing, England, at the age of eighty-one years. He was born in Plymouth in 1840. Besides his numerous volumes of poems and prose works, Mr. Dobson contributed much material to various encyclopedias and wrote continually for important magazines and reviews. In 1913 he was spoken of as a possible successor to Alfred Austin as Poet Laureate of England. Mr. Dobson spent forty-five years as a clerk in the London Board of Trade, which he entered in 1856. He was given an LL.D. by the University of Edinburgh and was a member of many literary societies.

Some of his best remembered works are: Poems: Vignettes in Rhyme, 1873; Proverbs in Porcelain, 1877; Old World Idylls, 1883; At the Sign of the Lyre, 1885; Lives of Bewick; Fielding; Steele; Goldsmith; Walpole; Hogarth; Richardson; and Burney, 1884 to 1903; Four Frenchwomen, 1890; Eighteenth Century Vignettes, 3 vols., 1892-'94-'96.

Ottenheimer Enlarges

THE jobbing and publishing house of I. & M. Ottenheimer of Baltimore has purchased a large daylight building at 800 East Lafayette St. for offices and warerooms where it will have greatly increased facilities for display and shipping. They had been at the old W. Baltimore St. location for eighteen years.

Scandinavian Information

THE Danish Association of Booksellers and Publishers is prepared to furnish information both on foreign translations of Scandinavian authors and Danish translations of foreign authors. The information will be given without payment, except in cases necessitating special research or expense.

Requests must be addressed to the President of the department, Mr. M. H. Jespersen, Val-kendorfs-gade 22, Copenhagen K.

Modern Author Bibliographies

THE Brick Row Bookshop of 19 East 47th Street, New York, is bringing out in conjunction with Leslie Chaundy of London a series of bibliographies on modern authors, founded on the material first published in the London Mercury, with corrections and additions. The pamphlets are to sell at 75c in this country. The one on John Masefield is compiled by I. A. Williams, and is to be followed by one on George Moore with an introduction by himself, one on J. C. Squire, Max Beer-bohm and Samuel Butler.

The Courtesies of Publishing

A PUBLISHER'S advertisement of unusual character was carried in the New York Evening Post, where Christopher Morley's column, "The Bowling Green," is an editorial feature. It is worth repeating, tho in smaller space.

THE BOWLING GREEN

It has occurred to Doubleday, Page & Co. that Mr. Christopher Morley, who daily disports himself under the above heading in the dignified columns of the Evening Post, is less known as a writer of books than he should be, no doubt partly due to his own modest disposition.

The fact is that he has published a number of good books, and the leader in point of sales is "The Haunted Bookshop," having sold up to date 25,000 and still climbing after only two years of life.

Another book written when he worked with us here in Garden City—"Parnassus on Wheels"—has passed 15,000 and is, after four years, still "going up," as the elevator man says.

In addition to these friendly volumes we have published the following really good sellers:

KATHLEEN
SHANDYGAFF
TALES FROM A ROLLTOP DESK and George Doran has published the following:
MINCE PIE
SONGS FOR A LITTLE HOUSE
THE ROCKING HORSE
HIDE AND SEEK

which we don't advertise because he is a rival publisher.

People write to us constantly asking, "Where can I buy Chris Morley's books?" To which we whisper in confidence: "In a book store."

The Weekly Record of New Publications

This list aims to be a complete and accurate record of American book publications. Pamphlets will be included only if of special value. Publishers should send copies of all books promptly for annotation and entry, and the receipt of advance copies insures record simultaneous with publication. The annotations are descriptive, not critical; intended to place not to judge the books. Pamphlet material and books of lesser trade interest are listed in smaller type.

The entry is transcribed from title page when the book is sent for record. Prices are added except when not supplied by publisher or obtainable only on specific request. When not specified the binding is cloth.

Imprint date is stated [or best available date, preferably copyright date, in bracket] only when it differs from year of entry. Copyright date is stated only when it differs from imprint date: otherwise simply "c." No ascertainable date is designated thus: [n. d.].

Sizes are indicated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); Q. (4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (12mo: 20 cm.); S. 16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Tt. (32 mo: 12½ cm.); Ff. (48mo: 10 cm.); sq., obl., nar., designate square, oblong, narrow.

Rare Books, Autographs and Prints

A MEMORIAL library will be erected to Joyce Kilmer at Champion College, Prairie du Chien, Wisconsin.

The Camera Club is holding an exhibition of members' work in its rooms at 121 West Sixty-eighth Street.

A collection of Americana will be sold on September 30 by the Heartman Auction Company, Inc., at Rutland, Vt. It includes early almanacs, bibliography, orations on the Boston Massacre, Colonial broadsides, rare Franklin items, early newspapers and miscellaneous items concerning all periods of American history.

Russian gold, silver and precious stones have been undergoing a steady dispersal since Lenin and Trotsky assumed power. Now it is said that the artistic treasures of the Hermitage Gallery and also the rare manuscripts and books of the Hermitage Library, of the Winter Palace, Petrograd, will be sold to aid the famine sufferers.

The regular autumn catalog (No. 6, Part I) of the Brick Row Bookshop, Inc., of this city, makes a handsome octavo volume of 128 pages containing 2,270 lots, divided between biography, Shakespeareana, books about books, and first editions. The latter section contains nearly 1,000 items, mainly of authors of the Victorian period and of our own time.

Dealers' stock purchased in Europe during the summer is beginning to arrive here. Collectors, it is said, are beginning to be a bit curious about what may be in store for them. Last week showed a marked increase all along the line in business among the bookshops and the quiet summer is now by no means construed as indicating a dull season for 1921-22.

There have been several attempts to establish a collectors' magazine in this country—among them The Booklover, The Bibliophile, The Literary Collector, The Bibliographer and The Autograph—and all have been short lived. There are doubtless collectors enough in this country to support such a periodical, but they are widely scattered, and the difficulty is in reaching them quick enough to make such a venture a financial success. The delay in developing a constituency has generally proved disastrous.

The series of bibliographies of modern authors published in London by Leslie Chaundey & Company has been undertaken jointly with the Brick Row Bookshop, Inc., of this city. Attention has already been called to the bibliographies of Robert Bridges and John Masefield which have appeared and of George Moore soon to follow. Then will come the bibliographies of J. C. Squire, Max Beerbohm, W. B. Yeats and others.

A limited edition of "Tudor Church Music," in ten royal quarto volumes, will be published during the next five years by the Oxford University Press. Sir Henry Hadow writes most enthusiastically of the proposed publication "If you could imagine that the Elizabethan drama had been lost and now rediscovered, it would not be an extravagant parallel," he says.

The limited edition of Howard Pyle's "Book of Pirates" is one of the most successful books of its kind published in recent years. The color work is exceptionally good and the selections represent one of the most original and artistic phases of Pyle's illustrative work. Here is a case in which it is safe to say that the fifty Japan paper copies will not last long and are pretty sure to go to a premium when the edition is dispersed.

The point has been raised in Europe that the Louvain University Library was not as rich in rarities as claimed owing to a previous pillage in 1797 by the French Army. M. Emile Cammaerts, in a letter to the London Observer, quotes the estimate of Professor Delannoy, the university librarian, who stated that the library possessed 500 manuscripts and 250,000 printed books, including more than 1,000 incunabula. He recalls the manuscript in the hand of Thomas à Kempis, and also the unique copy of Vesalius, who was a student at Louvain. It is also stated that in 1797, when the university was pillaged by French invaders, steps were successfully taken to protect the more important of the library's treasures.

A special catalog of first and rare editions of Johnson, Goldsmith, Coleridge and Lamb, containing 153 lots, has just been issued by the Brick Row Bookshop, Inc., of this city. The rarer items include the first issues of the first edition of Goldsmith's "Vicar of Wakefield"; the first issue of the first published edition of "The Traveler"; a presentation copy of the first edition of Coleridge's "Biographia Literaria"; the first edition of Lamb's "Beauty and the Beast"; first issues of the first editions of "Elia" and "Later Essays from Elia"; Johnson's Rambler for the years 1750-51; the first edition of his "A Dictionary of the English Language," and a presentation copy of the first edition of "A Journey to the Western Islands." There is also a copy of Boswell's "Life of Johnson," edited by George Birkbeck Hill, six volumes extended to ten, by the insertion of 1,077 prints, 569 of which are said to have been published during seventeenth and eighteenth centuries.

"There are few presses in America housed with nicer regard for atmosphere and association than the Merrymount Press of Boston," says The Bookman's Journal of London, "and the English collector interested in printing would be pleasantly impressed by the links with the past evidenced on every hand in the Boston house founded by D. B. Updike." Among the specimen sheets that greet the visitor on entering the building are those of Isaac Moore, of Bristol, 1766, and John Baskerville, the Birmingham printer, 1762—one of two known copies; and further on there are type sheets of Johan Petri, of Basle, 1525; Joseph Fry, Moorefields, London, 1785; rare prints of Jacob Tonson, Le Tellier, Robert Ballard, and an interesting original document signed by Louis XV, appointing Pierre-Robert-Christopher Ballard as private printer to the Comte d'Artois, afterwards Charles X. on his marriage with the Princess Maria Therese of Savoy. These are only a few of the interesting possessions that adorn the house. In the library is being gathered a fine collection of books relating to the history of printing, including examples of the work of Jensen, Aldus, Tory, Ratholdt, the Estiennes, Unger, Bodini, Caslon, Didot, Fournier, Ibarra, Pickering, Morris, and all of the modern presses.

The Massachusetts Society of Mayflower Descendants reports that since its last general congress it has received as gifts 86 bound volumes, 2000 pamphlets, 250 old documents, fifty photographs and photostat copies of old Bibles or other family records, gravestones, etc.; five old family Bibles, one of them containing the birth date of the original owner, in 1662-63, the birth date of his wife (the granddaughter of John Howland), in 1663, and the birth of their children, and many other relics of this early period. The most important gifts received have been eight books printed by Elder Brewster, at Leyden, Holland in the years of 1617 and 1618. Seven of these, including four with William Brewster's name as printer on the title pages, were presented by the society's secretary, who is a descendant of the elder. The society now owns six different Brewster imprints and four duplicates. As far as known, no other collection in this country contains all of these books with Brewster's name on the title pages and the only collection in the country containing a number of different titles is that in the Yale University. The society hopes to publish during the coming winter a book on Brewster imprints and autographs, giving full-page reproductions of the title pages of all known prints and all documents or pages of books bearing his autograph signature. F. M. H.

Coming Italian Book Fair

EARLY in 1922 an international book fair will be held in Florence in the interests of international book-trade. The aim of the fair will be to give to the countries interested knowledge of the book market and, especially, to bring to the attention of foreigners the progress made in the realm of print in Italy. In connection with the fair exhibitions of work in "related" fields will be shown: book-illustration, book-binding, photography and other art.

Index to Fall Announcement

In this list publishers' announcements are indexed by author, title and series. Titles recorded in the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY before July first have been generally excluded. Titles beginning with an unimportant word are usually inverted, so that a book on a given subject will be listed under its subject if possible. Fuller information of the books announced will be found in the publishers' advertising pages, index to which is given on page 965.

Book Review Mediums

IN the following pages are presented leading book review mediums which have a combined circulation of over 2,500,000. Successful booksellers and their assistants follow their reviews and comments of the new books, and are prepared for the demand of every new "best seller" which they help to create. Publishers realize that news about their books has the greatest human interest only when presented with intelligence and imagination in good book mediums.

THE newspapers and magazines which talk about books have each a distinctive manner of presenting "book news" to their readers,—thus creating new points of interest. In the campaign for the "wider and wiser use of books," they are a predominant factor.

A Market for Rare and Out-of-Print Books

The Book Exchange columns of The New York Times Book Review and Magazine are consulted each week by persons interested in purchasing original manuscripts, rare, old or out-of-print books (American or foreign) or who are desirous of selling such works now in their possession. Entire libraries are bought and sold through the medium of these columns, as are also books of travel, text books, ancient prints and art objects. As a means of inter-communication between book-sellers, librarians and collectors, the Book Exchange has given satisfactory results to many advertisers.

There is no other publication in the world similar to The New York Times Book Review and Magazine, which accompanies the Sunday edition. It has the largest circulation of any literary magazine—more than 500,000 copies each week—reaching the largest group of intelligent, discriminating readers ever assembled by a newspaper.

Announcements in the Book Exchange columns are 12 cents a word; for 52 consecutive insertions, 10 cents a word.

HISTORY OF The New York Times 1851 to 1921

of The New York Times Editorial Staff

In commemoration of the 25th Anniversary of the present management, August 18, 1921, and the 70th Anniversary of the first issue, September 18, 1921, this history of The New York Times is really a history of New York journalism, from the days preceding the Civil War through to the great period of the present.

Contains 456 pages; 32 gravure illustrations of persons and scenes prominent in the development of The Times and 18 fac-simile reproductions of first pages, recording significant events.

"May I have my name placed on your mailing list so that I will receive a copy of the Atlantic Monthly Bookshelf in advance form? I find that more and more libraries are using your columns in deciding upon books for their shelves, and I am quite certain that it will be a great help to have the above mentioned material."

A careful analysis of what THE ATLANTIC has to offer the publisher shows why it stands alone as a book advertising medium, but should there still be any doubt, the additional value of the Atlantic's Bookshelf removes all question.

The unique feature of THE ATLANTIC as an advertising medium for publishers lies not only in its ever growing circle of book buyers, but also in its appeal to the trade, through its Bookshelf.

If you are not receiving the Atlantic's Bookshelf Reprint, let us add your name to our list beginning with the November number.

Selling Reading As An Idea----

A LARGER PUBLIC FOR BETTER BOOKS

THE WEDNESDAY BOOK PAGE

THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS

When The Daily News, some four years ago, inaugurated its Book Page it had one well-formulated ideal in mind:—to popularize good reading.

Other literary bulletins, not only in Chicago but everywhere, were giving writing-information it is true. But their audiences were specialized—they appealed only to those who understood and were already keenly interested in books.

The Daily News had a theory which it considered worth working out. It realized that a great majority of the public overlooked true literary merit; that "pot-boilers" were the best sellers, while the better books in many cases were neglected.

There could be only one reason for this condition; the public was not sufficiently informed. The casual reader did not care to wade through a mass of pedantic verbiage. The average book page mystified him. Literature was not made attractive.

The Daily News Book Page has always been different. Its reviews and articles are noted for a style of brilliant informality—a personal touch. Instead of implying "This book is a great book—therefore it is far over your head," it says, "Here's a book that is very well written. Read it. You'll find it as exciting, as thrilling as the other sort. And at the same time you will find in it ideas, new avenues of thought, delightful style."

The Book Page talks with—not down to—the reader. Bad books are mercilessly condemned—good books are enthusiastically recommended.

The result has been that The Book Page has a large and ever-increasing audience. Book-fan and casual reader alike consult its columns every Wednesday for literary news and advice. They know it is always reliable; that they can trust it completely. And they enjoy its breezy style.

There is a very definite proof of The Book Page's influence. That proof is shown in book-advertising lineage. Publishers place advertising where it gets results. And The Daily News carries the bulk of Chicago book-advertising.

Here are the figures for the first 8 months of 1921 in Chicago papers:

The Daily News (6 days)	38,650 lines
The Tribune (7 days)	36,382 lines
The Post (6 days)	25,184 lines
The Herald-Examiner (7 days)	8,882 lines
The Journal (6 days)	728 lines
The American (6 days)	301 lines

The tremendous reader-influence of The Book Page is carried over to the advertisements. Advertising on The Book Page sells good books.

THE NORTH AMERICAN LEADS

In Book Advertising

Book News, Book Buying Readers

Leadership may be attained by fortunate chance, perhaps, but it can only be retained by proven merit—and THE NORTH AMERICAN has long held the leading place in the book field.

The last mentioned phase of this triple leadership—in book buying readers—is, of course, the natural consequent of and deduction from the other two. Obviously, we must have more book buying readers—sell more books—or our advertising leadership could not be held and our book news feature would fall of its own weight.

Ours is the type of newspaper that appeals to the more serious minded, substantial people; the people of means, aspirations and good basic intelligence—and they constitute the bulk of the book reading and book buying public.

Saturday is the “book day” of THE NORTH AMERICAN—and our book pages have conclusively demonstrated their interest, influence and selling power in the publishing field.

A Little Pome

"In American"

By JOHN V. A. WEAVER

What kind of people do you like to talk with?
They's plenty kinds that always gets my goat.
First, they's the kind that uses great big words,
I don't know what they mean, nor they don't neither,
I bet, if you could get 'em to admit it;
A bunch of bunk that hides a flock of nothin'.
Then they's the kind that treats me like a simp,
And seems to say, "Now listen, you, I'm tellin' you.
You poor old dumb-bell, hear these words of wisdom!"

And then they's some that preaches. And they's others

That goes the other way, tries to be smart,
And makes a jumping jackass of theirselves.
I hate 'em all. I won't be hollered at,
Or preached to, or talked down to, or high-toned,
Or be a target for a mob of words,
Or watch no "Life-of-the-party" pullin' stunts.
They're all just forty-seven kinds of bores.

The kind of guy I like to listen to
Don't put no airs on, don't think it's a favor
That he should spill his wisdom on my head,
Don't try no hocus-pocus with his words,
Don't try to be no talkin' Charlie Chaplin.
He knows his stuff, and I can tell he knows it.
And what he has to say he says straight out,
Informal-like; he says it interestin',
And—you know—cute—so that you like to hear it.
You might say, brilliant, only not too dazzlin'.
He treats me like a reg'lar yuman bean,
One that's worth talkin' to, and talkin' right.

Now, what this means, it's all about a Book Page,
A Book Page that'll make the folks read books.
That is the kind the Brooklyn Eagle's got,
Under the sort of policy they changed to.

Myself, I got a colyum every Sadd'y,
And I conducts it personal, myself.
I use that colyum just to talk to people,
And tell 'em what I think about the books,
And little things about the folks what write 'em,
Just talk, you know, the best way that I can.
And all the other articles we print,
They got the same idea—to talk to folks,
Informal-like, yet usin' all the knowledge
And judgment that they got.

So now I ask you,
Ain't that the kind of Book Reviews to have?
You seen the other sort a million times,
And don't it seem this new way is the best?
The Brooklyn Eagle makes the folks read books,
And, best of all, it makes 'em go and buy 'em.

So, if you want to tie-up with that int'rest
That readers have that's treated like real people —A bunch of readers that's the best in Brooklyn—

A bunch that reads the only Book Review
Published in Brooklyn, that's your one best bet:
Advertise books right on that very book-page.

The readers buy in Brooklyn or Manhattan
It doesn't matter which. They buy, all right,
Look at the advertisements of the stores
From New York—you can bet those fellas know

A Book Page that's informal but the goods—
That's what the Brooklyn Eagle gives the public.
Don't take my word about it. Read it and see.

THE BROOKLYN EAGLE

JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT, who writes for The Chicago Tribune as "Eye Witness," has charge of the new Book Pages. Born in Michigan and a graduate of the State University, Mr. Bennett has had a wealth of experience which equips him unusually well for his present position. He knows literature and he knows the Central West, having been a Chicago journalist, dramatic critic, war correspondent and author for more than thirty years.

Largest Circulation of Any Newspaper Book Pages in America-

CHICAGO TRIBUNE book reviews (for many years a feature of the Saturday paper) are now appearing, greatly enlarged, in the Sunday issue. The Sunday Tribune has a net paid distribution in excess of 800,000—giving this book section the largest circulation of any in America.

Of the 800,000 homes reached by The Sunday Tribune about 450,000 are in Chicago and 350,000 in seven thousand towns and cities throughout the Central West. On request, you will receive free of charge The Tribune's 1921 BOOK OF FACTS, which lists these 7,000 communities and shows The Tribune's circulation in each of them.

This new section at 85 cents per line is unquestionably the most economical medium for book advertising today.

A Salesman Who Travels For You—

INTO the home, there to wait for a favorable opportunity goes THE BOOKMAN, an invited guest, to talk about the books you sell. Thousands of book-readers are guided by its advice, its publishers' announcements, its news and gossip.

It is read to that end alone

Do you realize that it is not unusual for a BOOKMAN reader to buy over one hundred books a year? Why? Because THE BOOKMAN'S chief purpose is to create more book-readers. It breathes the atmosphere of books. It talks the language of book-readers. It makes people want books.

A New Magazine

Look at some of the recent issues. Then you will realize how much more interesting and readable it is now, under the editorship of John Farrar, than ever before. You will understand why its circulation is jumping up, why its articles are so widely quoted, why the publishers give it so large a share of their advertising.

To the Bookseller

BEAUTY AND NICK, and MY UNKNOWN CHUM should be read, and often re-read, by every one over 17 years of age. Read them yourself to see how charmingly they dovetail into the Sex-and-Shekel-crazed age. Either (or both) makes

—if you want a Comrade, a Chum—or a Husband!

Every man who loves or ever will love a woman MUST read "Beauty and Nick." Every woman, single or married, SHOULD read "Beauty and Nick." Every husband and every wife who prefer a baby to a dog—a home to a domestic kennel—will SURELY read "Beauty and Nick."

SIR PHILIP GIBBS'

BEST WORK

"BEAUTY AND NICK"

If you want a friend, a pal—a WIFE!—look for one like the Lonely Lady in BEAUTY AND NICK. Such as she is rarely to be found in this the age of sex and shekels—surely not in the endless procession of poppy-painted dames and damsels, young as youth, wrinkled as an O'Shanter witch; all with skirts so tight as to make them goat-gaited; so short that these bogus beauties have turned the most beautiful Avenue of the world into a mere leg lane,—a free rival of the sash-clad ladies of a Broadway burlesque.

MY UNKNOWN CHUM WITH YOU

Clean literature and clean womanhood are the keystones of civilization, and "MY UNKNOWN CHUM is the cleanest and best all-around Book in the English language." It is the Chum of thousands; once read it will be your Chum all through life—at home and abroad.

When your Daughter, your Son, are old enough to think, travel and fall in love, insistently commend MY UNKNOWN CHUM to them. They will be grateful for your thoughtfulness.

You will agree with the NEW YORK SUN that "They don't write such English nowadays. The book is charming."

With SIR PHILIP GIBBS that "MY UNKNOWN CHUM is delightful."

U. S. SENATOR DAVID I. WALSH—the only book he has ever endorsed and commended—"It is all that is claimed for it—even more. It is not only a companion but a friend."

THE BAKER & TAYLOR CO., largest wholesale booksellers: "My Unknown Chum" is a wonderful book—appeals to the cultivated classes. Has a remarkable sale. We sell more copies than we do of many 'best selling' novels."

PAUL GAUGUIN HIS LIFE AND ART

By John Gould Fletcher

A keen and authoritative interpretation of the life and art of the great French painter. Fletcher shows Gauguin's real position and influence, and disentangles the real man and artist from the romantic accretions that have grown up around him. For the first time a clear conception of the inner life and evolution of the painter himself is presented to the English reader. With ten reproductions in half-tone. $2.00.

NOA NOA

By Paul Gauguin

Translated by O. F. Theis

Gauguin's own story of his flight from civilization and his life among the natives of Tahiti in the South Seas. With ten reproductions in half-tone. $2.00.

These two volumes sold separately, or together boxed, $4.00 per set.

DRY AMERICA

By Michael Monahan

This new book of Michael Monahan's is of wider appeal than any he has previously written, since it deals with prohibition, in which everybody is more or less interested. In several respects it is the most daringly brilliant and captivating work he has yet given us. Also its literary charm is such as to make us condone the polemic even at its fiercest and be it said our author does not spare the "Drys." Michael Monahan presents the literary case against prohibition, culminating in a humorous fantasy of what may happen to America in the event of its remaining wedded to its present prohibition idols; which the author seems to regard as extremely doubtful. Not the least interesting chapter is one in which Rudyard Kipling is made to give witness against prohibition and temperance. Cloth, pictorial cover. $1.50. Ready in October.

A VIRGIN HEART A novel by Remy de Gourmont

Authorized Translation by Aldous L. Huxley

A young girl is not merely a young heart but a young human body all complete. Remy de Gourmont attempted, by an analysis that knows no scruples, to reveal in this book what may be called the hidden side of a virgin heart, to show that innocence has its instincts, its needs, its physiological dues. The stroke of the great master psychologist is felt in every line of the book. Ready in November. Cloth, $2.00.

Two new volumes in The Sea Gull Library—Ready November :

The Shepherd's Pipe and other stories

By Arthur Schnitzler

Authorized translation from the German by O. F. Theis. One of the finest examples of the great Austrian's work.

DAUGHTERS OF FIRE

By Gérard de Nerval

Translated from the French by James Whitall. According to Arthur Symonds, Gérard de Nerval laid the foundation of what may be called the practical aesthetics of symbolism. "The Daughters of Fire" are three women to each of whom a story is given. They are wonderful, vivid, unique figures in literature.

THROUGH THE SHADOWS WITH O. HENRY

The background of the entire page is a dark, textured illustration. It depicts a large, imposing building, possibly a prison or a government structure, with multiple stories, arched windows, and a prominent tower on the left side. The building is rendered in dark, muted colors, blending into the overall yellowish-green, grainy background. The lighting is dramatic, with strong shadows and highlights that give the scene a somber and mysterious feel.

AL JENNINGS

Through the Shadows with O. Henry

IN the life of O. Henry there is a hidden and tragic chapter. One man in the world is fitted to write it. That man is Al Jennings, former outlaw. The two men, genius and bandit, lived together the story whose pages are now revealed.

Jennings met O. Henry in Honduras. Both were fugitives. O. Henry had not assumed a pen name then. He was Bill Porter. Charged as an embezzler, he had fled to Central America.

Together, Porter and Jennings traveled through South America, Mexico and California. In Texas they parted, the train robber giving his friend a parting gift of $3,000.

Through the Shadows with O. Henry

Porter was arrested, tried and convicted. He was sent to the Ohio Penitentiary on a five-year sentence. One year after his arrival, Jennings was sent to the same prison.

In that grim school, Porter learned the winsome art that has won the smiles and laughter of the nation. The crook, the prison demon, the cracksman were his friends. Al Jennings was his pal.

When Porter was discharged, he kept his prison record a secret. After his death, his publishers printed a biography revealing the facts.

The present story shows the dark source of the spring from which the nation's brightest merriment has bubbled.

Through the Shadows with O. Henry

320 pages, over 90,000 words, 8vo, six illustrations, frontispiece in three colors, decorative jacket.

THE HIDDEN ROMANCE OF THE NEW TESTAMENT by James Alex.

Robertson (importation)

Reading between the lines, the author's imagination plays upon familiar and often prosaic passages and incidental allusions, and suddenly they become rich in interest and throw a new light on most important matters. Full of challenging suggestions and most illuminating interpretations. Cloth, $2.25.

THOMAS STARR KING

PATRIOT AND PREACHER

By Rev. Charles W. Wendte

DURING the dark days of the Civil War this gifted preacher, lecturer and nature writer, by his genius, patriotic fervor and marvelous oratory, drove into obscurity the deep-rooted attempt in California to form a separate Pacific Coast Republic; raised a million and one-half dollars for the Unitarian Sanitary Commission, the Red Cross of that day; and saved California to the Union. The State of California has just elected Starr King to be one of the two representative heroes of that state in the National Hall of Fame at Washington. A fascinating biography of a capable man written by a close admiring friend.

WEEK DAY CHURCH SCHOOL

By Walter Albion Squires

Director of Week Day Religious Instruction,
Presbyterian Board of Publication

Twenty-two graphic representations are contained in the book, representing such matters as:

Sources from which pupils are gathered, Comparison of week day church school and Sunday school attendance.

Organization, Financing, Administration.

The book has been written on the assumption that the week day church school movement is more than an experiment; therefore, the author evaluates the movement in the entirety, as well as in its various forms in different communities.

Careful and conservative estimates are given as to the proportion of American children receiving instruction and the percentage of Sunday-school children brought into church membership.

Organization problems are discussed, not theoretically, but out of actual experience gathered in various communities.

One chapter is devoted to description of agencies organized for supplementary religious education.

NEW EDITION (Revised and Enlarged)

PREPARATION FOR TEACHING

By Charles A. Oliver

This popular book is so simple in style, yet so comprehensive in treatment, that it has met and is meeting the needs of hundreds of thousands who desire to fit themselves for more effective Christian service.

THE BOOK'S WORLDWIDE REACH

Used in thousands of Sunday schools for the training of young people for Christian activities.

Studied as a text book in the regular Bible and training period in colleges and Young Men's Christian Associations, and Christian Endeavor Societies.

Adopted by the workers of at least 30 denominations in the United States as a teacher training text book.

Translated into the languages and is used by missionaries in Japan, Korea, Brazil and Portugal, and is printed in the German language.

Approved by the Committee on Education of the International Sunday School Association. Recognized in all the States as a first teacher training course. Those completing the course are entitled to the joint Denominational and International Certificate.

A Text Book Which Reads With the Ease of a Novel

UNFINISHED BUSINESS

By Fred Eastman

Director of Educational Work of the Board of Home Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A.

Jointly prepared and heartily recommended for missions study during 1921-1922 by
The Board of Home Missions

The Woman's Board of Home Missions
The Board of Publication and Sabbath School Work

The Board of Missions for Freedmen

This book is vital and interesting and signalizes a new era, may we hope, in the treatment of books for missionary education. It is readable, compelling and abounding in human interest; and by its literary beauty and intrinsic worth grips the reader from the time he begins reading it until he is finished.
It is refreshing to find a serious text-book as engaging as a novel. Mr. Eastman did not neglect his facts, but remembered his readers. It is a book of solutions of problems which have been met by men and women, who have solved them out of their Christian faith and service.

SUNDAY SCHOOL BUILDERS

Stories from the Field of Sunday School Missions

By John M. Somerndike

Human Interest Missionary Stories

Missionary Committees are often confronted with a deficiency of missionary stories and tableaux appropriately arranged for Junior and Intermediate age group adaptation.

Mr. Somerndike, the Superintendent of Missions of the Board of Publication, found a real niche for human interest story material in the Sunday school, Daily Vacation Bible School, Mission Band and other organizations for children and young people when he wrote
"Sunday-school Missionary Incidents and Exercises," published a few years ago.

By this experience, it was found that the human-interest element in missionary stories from field workers makes far more interesting and attractive material for children and young people than statistics, maps, charts and long, dry descriptions of the Board's work, and actuates the writing of another new book on Sunday-school missions.

This new book has been written after the style of the above-mentioned successful book, and in every way is its equal.

The heroic and self-sacrificing feature of missionary life, always an inspiration to character building, is especially emphasized in all the stories. The people among whom the missionaries labor are characterized, becoming "real," with human tendencies for good and evil, thus making each narrative strike a con-cordant note with the reader.

FOLK SONGS OF MANY PEOPLES

By FLORENCE HUDSON BOTSFORD

During her frequent visits abroad Florence Hudson Botsford has been gathering these songs. Her book contains the music, jotted down often on odd scraps of paper at some village festival: the words in the original tongue and translations of these words into English poetry by such artists as Edna St. Vincent Millay, Jacob Robbins, Margaret Widdemer, Edgar Lee Masters.

THE UNTRIED DOOR

By RICHARD ROBERTS

To those looking for a book on the present social problems written from the religious point of view, we recommend this book, as Dr. Roberts has vital knowledge of the present social problems and a wide familiarity with types of Christian thinking. He reduces the situation to its basic principles and puts the solution up to the individual who for the most part has tried, not Christianity, but an inherited system of Christian thought.

MODERN MONEY METHODS FOR THE CHURCH

By FREDERICK A. AGAR

The object of the author is to suggest ways whereby the local church may be delivered from unwise financial methods, and to outline a plan adapted to provide adequate financial resources for both the local and the wider Christian enterprise. "Giving is not a matter of legislation but of life"; "Living and giving in a spiritual sense are synonymous." These two quotations show the atmosphere of this eminently practical book.

THE WITHERED FIG TREE

Studies in Stewardship

By EDWIN M. POTEAT

The author's purpose is to make clear the fundamental principles underlying the Stewardship movement and to furnish a basis for the organization of local leagues or groups of Christian stewards. Authentic personal testimonies reenforce the argument. The book is arranged for the use of classes, questions that will stimulate discussion and afford themes for debate being attached to each chapter.

STORY - TELLING LESSONS

By HENRY EDWARD TRALLE, M.A., Th.D.

We have in this volume a scientific approach to a popular subject, couched in simple, vigorous English. "The author handcuffs the reader's attention in the first chapter, and holds it captive to the end." Suitable not only for rapid reading, but a real text-book for use in training-classes in the local churches and in community schools. The book is a product of twelve years' experience in telling stories and teaching story-telling.

It is one in the series of volumes in religious education known as the Judson Training Manuals for the School of the Church.

NELSON AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES

Edited and Revised by the American Revision Committee

Throughout All Generations

Since Jehovah first revealed Himself through the writings of His servants has run the quest of of the people of Jehovah for the clearest, truest, most accurate translation and interpretation of His Holy Word.

As in the earlier days of the Prophets, so down through the earthly ministry of His Son, as well as in the wonderful messages of the great Evangelists and Apostles, has the Divine Will been recorded in the Bible. But no version of the Book of Books in the English language has done this with the simplicity, charm, purity, clarity and authority of the American Standard Bible.

The American Standard Bible text has been adopted for use in all the leading Colleges, Theological Seminaries, Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A., and Bible Schools throughout the United States.

The American Standard Bible text is used by over 13,000,000 scholars from which to study the International, graded, or other Bible lessons.

The American Standard Bible is made in 250 styles, as below: Text, Scholars', Reference, Teachers' and Pulpit Editions, New Testaments and Psalms, in all sizes of type, and every style of binding.

The King James Bible can also be supplied in the above styles for those who prefer the older translation.

The Vest Pocket Lawyer

Here at last—in a single volume—a complete law course—clearly analyzed in understandable English. It is a daily guide—a manual of reference for the business man—the law student—the justice of the peace—the notary public—the farmer—the clergyman—the merchant—the banker—the doctor.

Ask Any Question—This Book Has the Answer

It doesn't just give you an opinion, but it gives you the LAW and the REASON WHY. It also gives you a SUPPOSED case in every instance. Nothing complicated; just the LAW as standardized for the past one hundred years. Ask your question just as you would ask your Lawyer; only instead of SPEAKING you look up the INDEX of this little book. In the index you will find the subject of your question followed by the NUMBER of the paragraph containing the ANSWER and the SUPPOSED case.

MAESTRO BOOKS

ANNOUNCEMENT

The long anticipated reconstruction story by Charles Francis Stocking, E. M. (author of "Carmen Ariza," "The Diary of Jean Evarts," etc.) will appear in the near future. Definite announcement of its title and theme will soon be made. In the interim, and as preparation for a thorough understanding of this powerful forthcoming work, we recommend an immediate and careful reading of this author's super-novel, "Carmen Ariza" and his fascinating meta-physical work, "The Diary of Jean Evarts."

CARMEN ARIZA

(25th Edition)

The dramatic story of a girl who rescued a priest from his chains of bigotry and death through her working knowledge of obsolete, war-causing beliefs, of the poisonous weeds of mentalized religion and the suppositional opposite nature of evil and the methods of combating it. Its treatment of the questions of a "future state," of death, matter, and the origin and destiny of the human mind is the most remarkable and successful ever embodied in a novel. Colored frontispiece, 996 p., 2 V. in 1. Cloth, $2.50 net. Leather, $3.50 net. De Luxe, leather, gilt edges, $4.00 net. Postage, 15c.

The DIARY of JEAN EVARTS

(20th Edition)

In this beautifully written treatise, composed by the author in the sun-kissed hills of California, a young girl in the last stages of tuberculosis, hopeless of human aid, and denouncing God and man-made creeds, receives a new truth—and with it a new sense of life. How this was accomplished is the vital message which this book has carried around the world to thousands of helpless, discouraged, sin-weary sufferers becoming truly a "light shining in dark places." Cloth, $1.75 net. Morocco, $4.00 net. Postage 10c.

CHICAGO

The Personal Help Series

Personal Help for the Married

A volume for married and marriageable men and women, discussing the importance of marriage, its motives and ideals, fitness for marriage, and information of a vital character, that everyone should know.

Personal Help for Parents

The value to parents, and their children, of this volume, can not be measured in terms of money. Eternity alone can reveal its importance to future generations, in helping parents to safeguard their youth, and in the building of character while young that will withstand the temptations of later life.

The "talk" to fathers and the "talk" to mothers throw a flood of new light on the all important problems of child conservation, child training and character building. And the specific and comprehensive guide to instruction in the delicate matters of sex—the beautiful "Story of Life" are revelations and a God-send to all earnest parents.

Personal Help for Men

A volume of vital knowledge designed to help married and marriageable men and younger men to avoid the physical, mental and moral disaster due to ignorance of the laws of man's sexual nature.

The answers to questions, given in person to thousands of men, which have given them new hope for greater happiness and usefulness and delivered many worries about their real or imaginary problems, are here given for the benefit of the millions.

Personal Help for Young Women

A volume of clean, chaste, scientific, practical knowledge to help young women in their truest physical, mental and moral development. By Mrs. Louise Francis Spaller and Professor Shannon.

While this book was written with the special view to giving young women vital knowledge of themselves on neglected subjects, the information is presented in language, thought and arrangement of topics so as to be of special value to all mothers and lady teachers who may wish to give appropriate talks to girls and young women of varying ages.

Personal Help for Boys

Vital information for boys at ages of greatest danger to mental, moral and physical welfare, containing just what boys up to fifteen years of age ought to know and no more. Advice, counsel and help essential to safety in their relations with other boys. Also hints concerning proper relations with young girls. By Professor Thomas W. Shannon, A.M., assisted by Professor Richard W. Lewis and Emory Adams Allen.

Personal Help for Girls

A volume of "heart to heart talks" with growing girls concerning their peculiar problems, including timely counsel, wholesome advice, and helpful instructions under the general subject of "Learning to Live," particularly while approaching and passing through the critical period of early adolescence. By Mrs. Louise Francis Spaller, author, lecturer, journalist and traveler; supplementary chapters by Professor Shannon.

Bindings and Prices. These six volumes of The Personal Help Series are uniformly bound in Cloth, price $1.95 per volume. Morocco Grain, $2.45 per volume. Add 15c. per copy for mailing expenses.
